ALARMISTS AT WORK AT WASHINGTON

ANNEXATION SCARE NOT ALL ONE-SIDED

Canada's "Electrical Control" of the Commercial Situation
"With Hand on Throttle"

If certain Canadians have taken alarm at spectres which have been raised before them in connection with reciprocity they are not alone; the same means have been taken to scare the people of the United States, and the danger will be found recorded on page after page of the hearings before the senate finance committee. While Canadians have been told that dread monsters threaten to swallow their nationality, their trade or their industries, the people of the United States have heard the stories that the Canadians can drive their farmers out of business, close their lumber and paper mills, and cause thousands to walk the streets in idleness.

As any thinking man knows, neither score is justified. When the bill becomes law Canadians will trade with the United States along natural and already well-developed lines, but it will be done a little easier than before. The Canadian paper industry will be on a better footing, as it deserves to be, having the wood and the water-power. Some manufacturers goods that Canada urgently wants from this side will be made a little more accessible. There will be an easing of the tariff burden along certain lines; some selfish people will find their advantages under the tariff measurably lessened. Canadian farmers will sell to crowded eastern American cities that badly want more food, Canadian prairie farmers may buy lumber from across the line. British Columbia, and Ontario lumbermen will sell in the United States where their product for economic reasons is much wanted.

But harken to the plaints of the witnesses before the finance committee. They were enough to puff a Canadian's chest before the stock size of a ready-made suit.

Said Andrew L. Folger, lecturer for the New Hampshire State Grange: "When Kipling called Canada 'Our Lady of the Snows' he gave us a very erroneous idea of what Canada is. I would like to read this because I have failed to hear any evidence put before the committee as to what we are up against at the present time over the border line. We have proved the statement that Voltaire made that 'North America was but a few acres of snow, not worth fighting for'—dead, long, long ago. The fact is, gentlemen, Canada is a wonderful country, extending from the latitude of Rome on the south to that of the North Cape in Norway, exceeding the United States in area, with Alaska included. You can deduct that part lying north of the Arctic Circle, and a considerable south of it, and have a farm remaining available for profitable agricultural development with an area of 1,700,000 square miles of territory, a large part of which is already developed, as large as the United States east of the Rocky mountains.

"With the long hours of sunshine in the summer days, mixed with the warm winds of the Pacific, the limit of fruiting grain and potatoes, and the fruit is reached not until we have passed a thousand miles beyond our northern border line in western Canada. Thus nature's God has preserved those great plains to the use and for the use of the human family. Canada can easily support a population of at least 50,000,000 people. This shows us something of what the future of Canada may mean to us."

Rev. S. J. Hughes Elected President at Montreal.

Montreal, June 2.—Five candidates presented themselves to the general session of the Methodist Church conference at St. James Methodist church yesterday for election as president. The ballot resulted as follows: Rev. Silas J. Hughes, 130 votes; Rev. Dr. Young, 100 votes. Other names presented were those of Rev. Dr. W. Sparling, Rev. E. W. Craig and Rev. A. T. Webster.

Toronto, June 2.—In a letter to friends in Toronto, Wm. G. White, Anglican bishop of Honan, China, reports that 200,000 Chinese in the district of Yung-Ching have died of starvation since the famine commenced, and that men and women from Kaifung are taking advantage of the distress to buy girls for slaves and other purposes.

SOOKE LAKE WATER IN THREE YEARS

WYNN MEREDITH MAY SUPERVISE THE WORK

Council Will Decide Wednesday Next Whether B. C. Electric Man Will Get Job

The Sooke lake water proposition assumed form and color last night in the session of the city council through the water commissioner's report and recommendation that Wynn Meredith, the consulting engineer for the B. C. Electric Company, be engaged to supervise the Sooke Lake development scheme.

Wynn Meredith is no stranger to this part of the country, he having supervised many of the most important works of the kind that have been carried out in the province within recent years. One of his most notable achievements is the execution of the Jordan River power plant scheme. Throughout the province he is well known in connection with such works.

While the council did not decide upon anything last night it was obvious that Mr. Meredith's claims had created an impression. Copies of the water commissioner's report will be submitted to the aldermen along with the letters of application from Mr. Meredith, H. S. Hancock, and H. G. Foster-Barham, to be considered by them before next Wednesday evening, when a special meeting of the council will be held to dispose of the matter. In the meantime a draft agreement engaging Mr. Meredith's services for the work will be drawn up by the city solicitor for consideration at the special meeting.

The report of the water commissioner was in the following terms:

"For some time past, negotiations have been in progress looking to the appointment of an engineer to superintend the Sooke Lake water scheme. As a result I beg to enclose copies of two proposals, one from Mr. Wynn Meredith on behalf of Messrs. Sanderson & Porter, and the other, a joint offer, from Messrs. H. S. Hancock and H. G. Foster-Barham. Mr. Meredith was formerly city engineer at Fort William, and is now practicing in Vancouver; Mr. Barham has been engaged on large works in England, and also in Corea and Australia, and is at present engaged in the city engineer's office.

"Mr. Meredith's proposition is on a basis of $2000 per month, not however, to exceed thirty-six months' work. Should the work be completed in less time the payment would be proportionately less, the city as per clause seven of the letter to supply all necessary help and clerical assistance. The proposal of Messrs. Hancock and Barham is at the rate of $500 per month until the work is commenced, and each until the work is completed, after that four per cent. on the total cost, in this case also the city to pay for the necessary assistance, etc. After careful consideration of the two proposals, I am of the opinion that that of Mr. Meredith is the better one, principally on account of its being somewhat cheaper, and I would recommend that it be accepted, and that the city solicitor be instructed to prepare an agreement on the lines of his letter, and submit it to the council for approval at Monday night's meeting. I would also recommend that the proposal contained in paragraph ten be accepted, all hiring to be subject to the approval of the water commissioner. The Jordan River system, being completed, the services of both Mr. Meredith and his assistant will be available at once.

LAKE STEAMER IS DAMAGED BY FIRE

Explosion on Board the Northwest at Buffalo—Damage Exceeds $500,000

Buffalo, June 2.—The mammoth lake passenger steamer Northwest, owned by the Northwestern S. S. Co., was damaged to the extent of nearly $500,000 by fire early to-day. Nothing but her steel hull remains. Her sister ship Northland was badly scorched. No one was injured.

Both steamers were at their docks in this city being overhauled for the season, opening June 21. The fire was caused by an explosion of oil. Four watchmen narrowly escaped serious injury but were able to get ashore and turn in an alarm. When the fire tugs arrived the Northwest was a mass of flames and it was with difficulty the Northland was towed out of danger.

It is stated that the Northwest, which plied between this city and Duluth, probably will be rebuilt. The steamer was valued at nearly $1,000,000, and was one of the finest afloat in fresh water.

AVIATOR KNIGHTED BY ITALY'S KING

Beaumont, First Birdman to Rome, Honored—Wins
Prize of $20,000

Rome, June 2.—Frey, the German entrant in the Paris to Turin aviation race, who has been stalled at Pisa by the wrecking of his machine, left that city at 8.15 o'clock this morning for Rome. He was forced to descend at Macerata, eight miles from here, owing to dense fog.

Vidart this morning succeeded in repairing the wing of his aeroplane, broken by landing at Cecelia, about 35 miles from Pisa, and again ascended, flying in the direction of Rome, where he expects to arrive early this afternoon.

Frey came by automobile to Rome yesterday noon and after taking luncheon returned to Macerata. King Victor Emmanuel to-day conferred knighthood on Andre Beaumont, who was the first contestant to reach the Italian capital, the end of the second stage of the 1,300 mile flight, and who won a prize of $20,000.

PROCESSION WILL BE MILE LONG

CORONATION PLANS
NEARING COMPLETION

Royal Proclamation Making
June 22 a Public Holiday in Canada

London, June 2.—Social functions, such as house parties, dinners and balls, in connection with the coronation, are becoming so numerous and engrossing that, combined with the unusually brilliantly hot weather, they are driving the people to seek outdoor recreation, and the theatre managers who anticipated a harvest in the influx of visitors to London, find themselves confronted with half empty houses.

The details of the coronation procession are now sufficiently completed to show that it will be a splendid cavalcade parade more than a mile long. Representatives of foreign courts will not ride in the procession, but will be accommodated with seats on the stands along the route.

Lord and Lady Derby last night held a grand dinner and ball at Derby House. King George and Queen Mary attended the dinner, but on account of mourning for Prince John of Denmark left before the dancing commenced.

Public Holiday.

Ottawa, June 2.—The royal proclamation making Coronation Day a public holiday reads: "Whereas, Thursday, the twenty-second day of June, in the year of Our Lord, 1911, has been fixed for our coronation day, and whereas we are desirous that said day should be observed as a day of general thanksgiving and rejoicing throughout Canada, now, therefore, know ye that we have thought fit by and with the advice of our privy council for Canada to appoint and set apart Thursday, the said twenty-second day of June, as a public holiday to be observed as a day of general thanksgiving and rejoicing by all persons throughout our Dominion of Canada, of all which our loving subjects and all others whom these presents may concern, are hereby requested to take notice and to govern themselves accordingly."

FIFTEEN INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

Three Machines Wrecked—
Two of the Victims Not Likely to Recover

New York, June 2.—Six men were injured early to-day when an automobile, racing down a boulevard in the upper Bronx, crashed into an elevated railway pillar and was wrecked. Two of the injured will die.

The party had rented the machine yesterday and were on their way home after a twelve hour sight-seeing trip. All these were thrown out when their car hit the pillar and were picked up unconscious by policemen and ambulance surgeons.

At the time of the accident a train was pulling into the "L" station overhead. The crash of the automobile against the pillar shook the train and the sound of smashing iron and wood could be heard above the roar of the cars.

The motorman thinking the accident was on his train jammed the emergency brakes and stopped the train so suddenly that the passengers were thrown out of their seats.

An hour before the accident another automobile accident near the edge of the Hackensack river, near Jersey City, injured nine persons and wrecked two machines.

WIFE MURDER AT NEW WESTMINSTER

POLICE SEARCH FOR HUSBAND OF VICTIM

Tragedy Believed to Have Followed Quarrel Early in Morning

New Westminster, June 2.—A murder of the most brutal character took place at 427 Front street this morning, when Harry Jobs, a machinist's helper employed at the Schenck Machine Works, shot his wife twice through the head, her death being probably instantaneous.

At the time of the shooting the pair were alone in the house and accurate information as to just what caused the quarrel leading to the murder cannot be obtained.

Shortly after 7.30 a.m. Jobs was seen on the street near the house by his son. He disappeared and at noon to-day the police of the city and district are scouring the country for a clue as to his whereabouts.

Jobs lived at 427 Front street with his two sons, Walter and Harry, all three being employed at the Schenck Machine Works. In addition to the immediate family, Mrs. Jobs kept a number of boarders, mostly men employed in the shops. Everybody was out of the house at 6.30 a.m. to-day when the murder is supposed to have been committed. It is evident that the pair were at breakfast when the quarrel started, as potatoes and other food from the table was scattered about the room, lying on the floor mingled with the blood of the dead woman.

The murder was discovered by Walter Jobs, who returned to the house from the shops about 7.30 a.m. When he was near the house he passed his father walking away from the residence, but there was nothing in his appearance to show the tragedy which had just been enacted in the house, so the two passed each other without conversation. Entering the house Walter immediately proceeded to the kitchen, and was horrified to see his mother lying dead on the floor, her head in a pool of blood which had poured from two bullet wounds, one under the right ear and the other under the temple. He promptly rushed out and informed the neighbors, and the police were promptly notified and started at work to get trace of the husband.

Jobs came to the coast from Ontario about March 1, his two sons having been here for some time, working both in Vancouver and New Westminster. He is said to have been a fairly steady man who drank some, but not to excess. There was, however, constant friction between himself and his wife, the differences frequently leading to open and violent quarrels. The cause of the disagreements were usually money and differences over minor matters connected with the boarding house arrangements. Yesterday Jobs bought a revolver.

BLAZE AT REGINA.

Fire Causes Loss Estimated At $30,000.
—Man Injured By Explosion.

Regina, June 2.—Fire broke out yesterday in C. T. Laird's hardware store in a brick building on 11th avenue, in the heart of the business district. The stock, worth $20,000, and insured for $10,000, was a complete loss. The building was damaged to the extent of about $10,000. Nearly a thousand spectators witnessed the blaze. A barber's shop and the Dallas cafe situated in same block were not badly damaged. A driver for the Laird Co. was badly burned on the face and hands by an explosion which set the place blazing. There was gasoline in the shop and no one can say what caused the explosion.

WIFE OF RAILWAY PRESIDENT KILLED

Loses Life When Train Is Derailed—Husband Sustains Serious Injuries

Vergas, Minn., June 2.—Mrs. L. S. Berg, wife of the president of the New Orleans, Mobile and Chicago Railroad, was killed, and Mr. Berg was seriously injured when Minneapolis, St. Paul, and Sault Ste. Marie passenger train No. 109 was derailed by a washout in a cut a mile south of Vergas, Minn., last night. Several other passengers sustained minor injuries.

Mr. and Mrs. Berg were en route to Winnipeg in their private car. It is thought Mr. Berg will recover. Eight of the eleven cars in the train and the engine left the track. Three of the cars burned completely, including the private car in which Mr. and Mrs. Berg were travelling.

THREATEN TO STRIKE.

London, Ont., June 2.—The iron moulders of this city threaten to strike unless the wages are increased from 25 to 27 cents an hour.

BOTH SIDES ARE READY FOR FIGHT

VANCOUVER STRUGGLE WILL BEGIN ON MONDAY

Chief Interest Now Centres in Attitude of B. C. Electric Employees

Vancouver, June 2.—If the promises of labor union leaders are made good Vancouver will be "tied up" in the industrial sense, on Monday morning. To-day no other subject than that of the locking of horns of the labor and the employing interests is being talked of on the streets. Some half-hearted efforts at mediation have been made, but the fight seems to be welcomed on both sides and there is a disposition in both camps to have the battle as big as possible while it lasts and have it over with. Then the question will be settled whether Vancouver will be a town of closed or open shops.

To-day the interest centres around the attitude of the employees of the British Columbia Electric railway, who include street railway men and workmen employed at the single power and electric plant that supplies current for street cars and industries.

The two chief labor leaders, Pettiford and McVety, have agreed to deliver the closing of all power and lighting and to stop the street cars as well as to cause all union workers in the city to quit. For two days the street railwaymen have been voting whether to strike or not. They must have a two-thirds majority if a strike is to be declared. If they strike a serious situation will be created; if they do not the tie-up will not unlikely be confined very largely to the building trades. As there are already thousands of non-union men in the city, working especially in the building trades, the strike would then not have a very appreciable effect on general business.

The trouble started with a carpenters' strike. The men asked for $4.50 instead of $4 a day. The bosses offered $4.25, explaining at the same time that their contracts had been made for the season on the 4th day. But there were hundreds of workmen in town who were not unionists and the day the strike started these non-union men were put on and the open shop declared by a dozen big contracting firms. Hundreds more men came in from Seattle. Suddenly the union men awoke to the fact that their own Labor Temple, for which the contract was signed in March, was being built by non-unionists and an open shop. Fifteen days after the strike was called the contractors announced that every job they had was going ahead well and that they had plenty of men. The bricklayers saved the situation for the bosses by staying at work. Then the carpenters carried their admitted defeat to the labor council, consisting of 52 unions. "The town is going open shop. No man at light or unionism will die," they said. The labor council agreed that there should be a general strike, hoping in the interval before June 5 that the bosses would come to time and make concessions to take back the carpenters at a higher rate.

Mayor Taylor, who had been elected by the laborites, proposed mediation by the city council and secured the appointment of a committee, though several aldermen warned him that the attempt was useless and that the men and employers ought to be left to fight it out. The master builders backed by the Employers' Association, declined to discuss arbitration, holding that the strike was over, and that they had plenty of men and were getting along very well. Labor sent an appeal to Hon. Mackenzie King, minister of labor, to mediate, but the employers sent to him the same reply they made to the city council.

Newspaper printers have wired to International President Lynch to inquire whether they may join the strike. No reply has been received.

The attitude of the street railway and power men will not be known until Sunday night. If the electric current is shut off the newspapers will be out of business anyway. On the other hand, if the electric employees stay at work the strike will probably not amount to much.

A novel but brutal form of duel between two officers has taken place in Baja, Hungary. Being both in love with the daughter of the farmer who employed them they decided to fight for her with their heavy horse whips. The girl agreeing to act as umpire, and accept the winner. In order to ensure that there should be no running away they first fastened themselves to two posts in the ground. The girl gave the signal to begin, and the two men, who were stripped to the waist, began to labor each other with such fury that long bleeding wounds soon covered their faces, arms and bodies. Unable to bear the horrible sight, the girl ran away for help. When she came back with some of the neighbors they found the two men lying on the ground covered with blood and exhausted. The duel was declared a draw.

When Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills Cured her Chronic Liver Complaint
Mrs. R. Smith, of Winnipeg, Man., tells an interesting story of relief from almost intolerable sufferings:
"I can hardly tell you how great my sufferings have been. Chronic liver complaint accompanied by biliousness were a daily source of trial to me. Every day I experienced the sickening effects of these ailments. I longed for some medicine that should permanently drive them away.
Hearing of Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, I thought they were worthy of a trial. My surprise was indeed great. From the very first I experienced relief. Continuing with them I found my troubles were slowly but surely leaving me, and before long I once more knew what it was to be free from the harassing effects of the ailments that had long sickened and weakened me. So great is my faith in Dr. Morse's Indian Pills that I shall never on any account be without them."

OPEN CHALLENGE TO HAWTHORNTWHAITE

Nanaimo Local Mails Registered Letter to M. P. P., Asking for Debate

The Nanaimo ex-Socialists are still in the ring with a challenge to J. H. Hawthornthwaite, M. P. P., to debate their differences in public. Their disadvantage appears to lie in the fact that they are no longer recognized Socialists, their charter having been cancelled at Mr. Hawthornthwaite's behest.

Mr. Hawthornthwaite is however still a Socialist in good standing having been restored to honor and dignity in the party by the B. C. Executive and against the protests of the local to which Mr. Hawthornthwaite owes all that he is through the early help given by them on the road to capitalism. It will be quite in order if a man of his position, wealth and accredited standing in the big party should ignore the challenge of the local he so long flim-flammed but has need for no longer.

The following is the letter of challenge published in the Nanaimo Herald.

Nanaimo, B. C., 30-5-11
Editor Herald.

Dear Sir.—Will you please publish the following letter which was forwarded by registered mail to J. H. Hawthornthwaite to-day:

Sir.—At a special business meeting held 30-5-11 I was requested to invite you to attend a public meeting to be held in Nanaimo on June 11th, 1911 at 3 p. m. to discuss grievances existing between you and Local Nanaimo No. 3 Socialist Party of Canada.

A. JORDAN.

Sec. Local No. 3, Nanaimo.

ALARMISTS AT WORK

AT WASHINGTON

A similar fear was expressed by N. G. Larimore of North Dakota: "Why bring that country with its untold millions of virgin soil to compete with our farmers, who have built up the prosperity of our country? If I have a little store, and a wealthy corporation gets its goods cheaper and opens a store on the next corner, I am soon driven to the wall, as our farmers will be when the floodgates of Canada are opened."

Or listen to this prophecy of Canada's wheat possibilities from Arthur A. Wilkinson, also of North Dakota: "I always have had the reputation of being rather conservative. I do not like to make any statements that are radical, but I would say I believe that inside of ten years, at the rate they are going on, these three provinces will raise more wheat than the United States does. I believe it, and they have got the ground for it. They have the territory and the acreage necessary, and the acreage to raise a great deal more."

A good deal of alarm was expressed over the great productivity of Canadian lands, and that the quality of Canadian cereals is better. This is what Mr. W. L. Ferguson, a Wisconsin farmer, said: "Here is the point that is overlooked by the majority of the people who are discussing this subject at this time, that is that there will be another difference in addition to this ten cents per bushel, on the ground that the Canadian wheat is better grade than American wheat; that Canadian barley is better quality than American barley, that Canadian oats is better quality than American oats."

Practically the same thing was said by Mr. L. R. Waterbury of Michigan: "They are able to produce in the Canadian northwest alfalfa, in addition to their cheap nutritious grasses for forage purposes they are able to produce large quantities of oats and barley and roots, which crop is very much more productive than in the United States. They are able to apply the old country methods of cattle-feeding, by which they can produce a finished, high quality of cattle upon these feeds."

A delegate from New York, Mr. F. N. Godfrey, master of the State Grange, was alarmed for the dairymen and potato-growers of his state. He said: "The dairy interests in New York feel very serious about this proposition. They were coming to think there was something and would be some money in the dairy business, but with the throwing open of the markets of our state to the dairymen of Canada, the allowing of them to put their milk upon our markets, the allowing of them to put their butter and cheese upon our market on the same basis that we are doing, is unjust and unfair. They are able to produce these goods in Canada cheaper than we can in New York."

"In regard to potatoes, New York state is a great potato section, and if the duty is removed on potatoes it will practically drive the farmers of New York state out of potato-growing."

"Senator Kern—Why? Because our land has been tilled longer; our land is not in the condition for growing potatoes; we have to use largely of fertilizers to produce successfully, and the Canadian market being so near to our great cities, they will be able to put them on the market as cheap as we can."

Similar talk about sugar beets was made by Mr. Felker of New Hampshire.

The great "Colossus of the North" loomed large in the evidence of John D. Wheelwright, a Boston paper-maker. This extract is worth quoting: "I am talking about the matter generally, but I simply wish to state this: That we rest upon the old principle of Abraham Lincoln that 'a house divided against itself cannot stand.' You cannot have in this country half protection on a certain amount of articles and then take and establish any complete industry, and subject them to the burden of the tariff and withhold them from all protection, particularly when there stands waiting the great Colossus

THINKING THEMES

BY DR. FRANK CRANE

There is an idea of an oak-tree in every acorn. In each manifestation of its growth the thing that rules and determines is that Tree-Idea. So in every growing thing there lurks in its instincts the idea of the perfected organism. This is what Benjamin Kidd calls "the principle of Projected Efficiency." Thus it is the Future that controls development; it is what a plant or animal is going to be, and not what it is, that shapes its growth.

Now Society, or the Human Race, may be called an organism, or growing thing. And I believe that the idea, the Norm, that is drawing to itself all social and racial development, is the idea of the Family.

It is the Family-Idea that is purging our theology of all its cruelties and artificialities, drawing us to the notion of one God who is a Father, and men who are His children.

The Family is the Norm of Government. The final, ideal Government shall be upon the model of the Family. This is the "one, divine, far-off event, to which the whole creation moves." It is the feeling at the bottom of all dreams of Tolstoy, Edward Bellamy, Henry George, the socialists, the communists and the Christians. The industrial world will have no permanent peace until it rests upon a Family basis. The thing Capital and Labor have to learn is that they are brothers. Competition is a foundation of sand; Co-operation, of rock.

It may take a long time, but God is in no hurry. Robert Burns, child of the soil, saw the Ultimate Truth, and brushing aside all the prejudice, hatred, selfishness and inertness, cried:

"For a' that, and a' that,
It's comin' yet, for a' that,
That man to man shall brothers be, of the North, with its forests and streams and its intelligent population ready, not to send into the pulpwood, because if you will look at this bill again you will see that it is shrewdly framed and devised so that the pulpwood grown in Canada shall be turned into paper and sent into the United States.
The world o'er, for a' that!"

"We cannot compete against the great Colossus of the North alone. No one thinks an industry is going to die at once; but what is the effect? Canada has got the electrical control of the situation, and Canada's hand is on the throttle. Canada can unhand restrictions about those mills; Canada can arrange it so that the products of the forests about these mills are made into paper and there will be at once a large competition in the book business."

Other men talked of the advantages Canadian have in buying under a lower general tariff. But the supreme sore touch was in the loss of citizens of this country to Canada by emigration. Here are two comments upon that:

"Pass this bill, and these people, instead of coming to Michigan would go up into the northern section," said C. E. Bassett of Michigan. "They are going there now. We are losing some of the best blood we have in the United States. I know that some have gone from our state, and this would simply put a premium on that proposition. If they would go there, with no markets in the state to furnish, they will go there all the more rapidly and eagerly when they can go there under conditions as stated and ship to the states."

"I am advised that 75,000 of the best sons of American soil were persuaded to go over into Canadian possessions within the last eighteen months," said John Strange of Wisconsin, a paper manufacturer, "and that they took more than 200,000,000 American dollars. As an American citizen I protest against the continuance of that policy if it is within my power to stop it."—M. O. Hammond in Toronto Globe.

UNITED WIRELESS

Pennsylvania Petitions for Appointment of Receiver for the Company.

Portland, Me., June 3.—The hearing began yesterday before associate Judge George E. Bird of the Maine Supreme court, on petition of Geo. Ross Eschelman of Lancaster, Pa., for the appointment of a receiver for the United Wireless Telegraph Company. The petitioner feels that the affairs of the company should be wound up, since the officers have been convicted and sent to jail. Eschelman is on record as owner of eighty shares of preferred and 629 shares of common stock of the company.

MODERN LOCHINVAR

Steal Girl from Her Home, Jailed, But Finally Weds Sweetheart.

Spokane, Wash., June 3.—After playing the part of a modern Lochinvar, stealing Clara Kimmert, his sweetheart, from her home in an automobile, being arrested as he was applying for a $500 bail, Hermann Schneider was finally brought to trial only to emerge triumphant and wed the girl, despite parental objection. Schneider is adding an exceedingly modern touch to his romance by suing his wife's parents, Milo and Jessie Kimmert, for $2,500 damages.

GOVERNOR ASSASSINATED

Nogales, Sonora, June 3.—Passengers arriving here to-day from Guaymas, the seaport city which is at present the southern terminus of railroad service on the west coast of Mexico, say that telegraphic advices received there before their departure told of the assassination of Governor Diego Roda, chief executive of the State of Sonora, on May 14. The reports, which are believed authentic here, say that the federal official had surrendered the capital, Culiacan, to the Maderistas.

EMIGRATION FROM IRELAND FALLING OFF

Census Returns Show Decrease in Population to Be Smallest in 70 Years

London, June 3.—The provisional census returns for England and Wales, just issued, were at first regarded as highly satisfactory from the sociological point of view, as they did not indicate any particular falling in the birth rate. A closer examination, however, showed that it was the poorest and least fit portion of the population that was growing most rapidly, while the better part of the population was either growing very slowly, or stationary or actually diminishing.

The Irish returns are especially interesting. They show the decrease of population in the sister island since 1901 to be only 1.7 per cent., by far the smallest percentage for 70 years. The decrease in males was only 0.6 per cent. since 1901, but in females 2.9 per cent. This is probably due to young men remaining in the country under the new land laws, while girls still emigrate. The result is that the males in Ireland total 2,155,594 and the females 2,195,147, so that the sexes are nearly equal. Women are greatly in excess in other parts of the United Kingdom.

FINGERPRINT IDENTIFICATION

Unmistakable Method of Bringing Criminals to Justice.

New York, June 3.—Doing nothing else but studying finger prints may seem like a strange way to make a living, but that is the way Joseph A. Faurot makes his. And the New York police department, in which Faurot has the rank of lieutenant, is convinced that no man in the department earns his salary in a larger degree than this square-jawed, square shoulderer, square talking Faurot.

Faurot recently centered the city's attention on his department by bringing about the conviction of Caesar Cella, alias Charles Cripri, for burglary. Cella, the strength of thumb print identification. Cella laughed when he first heard that Faurot would try to prove his guilt by showing that it was his thumb print found on the broken window of the robbed flat, but so cleverly did Faurot work up his case that Cella soon abandoned the nice alibi that he had prepared and confessed.

Faurot is slated over Cella's confession, as he says it will go a long way toward removing the skepticism that exists in the minds of a lot of people who ought to know better regarding the efficacy of finger print identification. Grand juries in the past have been loath to indict on the strength of such evidence, but Faurot is hopeful that hereafter official bodies will take cognizance of the irrefutability of such evidence.

"Finger print identification is the best in the world," Faurot says.

POLICE CHIEF SUSPENDED

San Francisco, Cal., June 3.—The board of police commissioners yesterday suspended Chief of Police John F. Seymour and appointed A. G. White as acting chief, pending the hearings of charges against Chief Seymour. New charges against Chief Seymour have been placed with the board differing slightly from those on which the commissioners have been enjoined from acting by a writ of prohibition issued by Judge Sewall and made returnable June 9. The charges preferred yesterday allege dereliction of duty, incompetency and failure to suppress gambling. After the reading of the affidavit, Commissioner Jewell introduced a resolution suspending Seymour. Hearing was set for June 8.

LETTER PLEASES TAFT

Washington, D. C., June 3.—One of the many letters which came to the White House commending the president's effort in behalf of Canadian reciprocity contained a sentence which was particularly pleasing to Mr. Taft. The letter was from a man in Sioux City, Iowa, whose name was not made public.

"If reciprocity fails," wrote the Iowa man, "you will see many new faces in Washington after the next election."

"COLOSSUS OF THE NORTH."

In the new pages of the Times to-day appears a report of a series of arguments presented to the Senate of the United States in opposition to the reciprocity agreement. The arguments are worth reading, both because they are based on facts and because they are suggestive of many things that should stiffen the spines of those who are disposed to creak with fear at the supposed or possible coming commercial supremacy of the United States upon the American continent. In one of these, the argument of Mr. John D. Wheelwright, of Boston, a new cognomen is applied to Canada, and its suggestiveness and appropriate character are so striking that we cannot but direct attention to the figure.

Canada has now three characteristics, each of which is worth studying in connection with the circumstances which gave it language. In early days when our fathers first moved westward from the Acadian shores and explored what must have been to them an expanse of forest wealth uncomputed before, they dignified and distinguished that country as "The Land of the Maple Leaf." This was before the fact was known that for more than a thousand miles in the inland continent there stretched vast plains with scarce a tree or a leaf.

Later Dr. Rudyard Kipling, who had traversed the seven seas, and with the descriptive license permissible to all poets, distinguished Canada from the sisterhood of dominions that make up the five links of empire as "Our Lady of the Snows." We thus have the pioneer and the poet giving expression to the outstanding distinction of the country in language that was suitably descriptive at the time. It remained, however, for a modern day, alert, far-seeing and inductive business man to give the Dominion its truest characterization in the words which intitle this article.

We conceive that Mr. Wheelwright, who in business matters is known as calculating and unemotional, was not in a sensational mood when he mentally scanned the geographical expanse of Canada and made comparison with his own country. Nor were his fellows in the delegation before the Senate malingering when they passed in mental review the resources of the country. Nor were any of them wrong in their common conclusion that Canada has the "electrical control" of the commercial situation as well as the industrial future of this continent. All that Canada needs to keep its "hand upon the throttle" of the progress of her people is wise administration, conservation of her boundless resources and business management in her affairs of state. Everything good must follow as naturally as trees grow from soil and the cattle upon a thousand hills fatten upon the luscious provisions of nature. Less than one hundred years ago the United States was less important, measured as we will, than Canada is to-day in the industrial and commercial relations of the world. In her development into a place among first powers she has passed through many experiences which, because of her neighborhood and the similarity of conditions, can be made highly instructive. In the evolution of Canadian nationality within the empire, what she has achieved has been done because of certain characteristics of her people which may be called American because of their difference from other methods and their adaptation to the circumstances of the growth of the republic. Not everything in her commercial or industrial evolution is admirable, but many things are. Canada has the rare, almost unique, privilege of turning to good account her costly experience as well as the avoidance of her errors, and it is because of this that she is rightly denominated the Colossus of the North. Her potential greatness can be made, to make the greatness of America to look pygmean when compared.

We say these things because, above the confusion and babel of the pessimistic tongues decrying Canada and fearing her absorption into the republic or her commercial subservience to the republic, there sounds the predominant, high-pitched yet melodious note of men who see ahead of Canada what their forebears saw ahead of the United States. That some day this "Colossus," sleeping as yet, will throw a shadow over the North American continent under which the other part of the continent may be glad to seek shelter, despite the greatness which it has already achieved. We see evinced by this man Wheelwright, the prophetic vision and the possibilities for men who are dominated by the same spirit as that which dominated the makers of America.

There are Canadians who have the same confidence in the future of Canada, and there are British statesmen who also possess it. These are not afraid that closer commercial relations with our next door neighbor will mean the subservience of our commerce, the spoliation of our resources or the servility of our industries. They know that these can only be despoiled when they fall under the administration of those who lack the courage of conviction and who would shelter Canada as an horticulturalist shelters a tender plant instead of allowing it to catch the sun rays and drink in the refreshing showers and make itself hardy against the chilling blast. Nations, like members of the human family, are only weakened when it is assumed that every draft means consumption and every chill means death; when every hygienic exercise of resistance is counted a danger to life and limb; a weariness and a risk. The hardest races and the mightiest nations have been evolved out of great conflict against amazing odds which did not amaze.

Verily we have come to the "parting of the ways," but the parting is not the choice between the way that leads to absorption into the republic as against magnifying of the empire. The parting is between the hesitancy, the timidity, the distrust of ourselves and the rebelling of the reins of our opportunity and making ourselves actually—not potentially—the Colossus of the North. Unity and solidarity, instead of creaking and cowardice, are the distinguishing characteristics of the sides of the line of demarcation, and we are not disposed to believe that the healthy, strong and vigorous young bloods of this rising people will be smitten with the palsy of fear because we live next to a powerful and mighty neighbor who does us the honor to acknowledge our dignity.

YET ONCE AGAIN.

It is regrettable, and the Times deeply regrets, that the morning paper does not exhibit a trifle of respect for its readers in discussing the reciprocity issue when limited to a specific application, as for instance the lumber industry. The reciprocity issue is one too serious for resort to pettifoggery and smart Aleckian tricks in its discussion. It is an issue based upon economic facts and the well-known but often poorly applied common sense principles of commerce. We do not propose to pursue the devious course of our contemporary nor follow it around the treadmill of the range of economics in discussing the lumber question. The Colonist selected this phase of the issue and called upon the Times for an explanation. The Times explained, and now the Colonist, totally oblivious of the fact that it is "it," runs off and continues to play "tag." The Colonist is foolish to think the public does not see this, and if it will go back to the days of its first childhood it will recall that a child who would not play fair was ruled out of the game and left to sulk. If the Colonist wishes to change its ground, let it say so and start a question on a new phase of the issue.

In the meantime the United States charges $2 per thousand on Canadian lumber. The Tories in 1894 took off the protection against American competition on the Canadian side of the line. The Times says that when reciprocity is ratified this embargo against Canadian lumber will give Canadian millmen as fair a chance in the American market as the Yankee mills have in Canada. Now the fair and square trade, without necessity or excuse for evasion or complication, and the one which we wish the Colonist to answer is, will the removal of this $2 embargo against Canadian lumber help or hurt the Canadian mills or Canada as a whole, and will it reduce wages in Canada? When the morning paper answers this question, which it raised for itself, we shall be quite ready to discuss any other economic aspects of reciprocity. There is plenty of time. The Colonist can evade the importance of the issue neither by hiding its head in the sand; blowing dust or shouting "We have said."

Will or will not the reciprocity pact as applied in the matter of lumber be a good thing for Canada? That is the issue; yes or no, and if not, why not?

The morning paper has committed itself squarely to the position that high taxation of imports make for high wages. It is solidly against a reduction in the cost of living believing that to be compelled to pay through the nose for what we eat is the guarantee of prosperity. We confess we have still a good deal to learn if this is true.

Will Mr. J. H. Hawth—te go to Nanaimo and answer the challenge of the Nanaimo Local S. P. C. Chorus of government members, "No!" Chorus of Nanaimo voters, "You dassen't!" All wise people's chorus, "Better stay away!"

The average wages of farm laborers in Ontario, including board, during the year 1909, was $21.52 by the month, and $17.43 for yearly contracts. In British Columbia the monthly rate was $30.50, and by the year $27.59. Yet the tariff is the same in both provinces.

—One of the chief musical events of this season, yet to take place is the cantata composed by Geo. F. Root, entitled "David, the Shepherd Boy," which will be performed in the Metropolitan church on Tuesday evening, June 13, by the choir, assisted by a chorus of Sunday school girls, the Sunday school orchestra and a harpist. The cantata is the story of the choosing of David as king. A large number of characters will be represented, prominent at the time David was chosen king of Israel.

—Next Tuesday, commencing at 8:15, the St. Andrew's Presbyterian choir of 4 voices, will give the new Sacred Cantata by H. E. Nichol, entitled "The Story of Music." Previous to this cantata there will be a short miscellaneous concert consisting of solos by Mrs. D. C. Reid, Miss L. —A warrant has been issued for the arrest of W. F. Henderson, who is charged with assaulting Mrs. A. Dickson at Goldstream. Henderson was summoned to appear and failed to do so at the sitting of the provincial police court yesterday. The assault was of a minor character, and is alleged to have occurred over a cattle trespassing dispute.

—Sometime during the present month it is expected that a minister, Mr. Lindridge by name, will arrive to take charge of the Unitarian church work here. He comes from Meadville, Pa., where he was recently graduated from the Unitarian Theological College. He has been engaged in the work of the ministry for a number of years, having preached for a time in Bloomington, South Africa, before transferring his allegiance to the Unitarian body. He is said to be an earnest and forceful speaker. The Unitarian church here was organized a little more than a year ago and although preaching services have been held regularly there has been no regular minister in charge of the field. It is expected that with the coming of Rev. Mr. Lindridge the church will begin a new area of progress and usefulness.

—As a result of a row at Victoria West, near Russell station, early this morning two Indians are in the hospital suffering from knife wounds, and a half-breed named Billy, and an Indian named Charlie Joe, are in the city prison waiting presentation before the magistrate on Monday on charges of wounding and assault arising out of the row. The four were drinking together on the bank near Russell station about 2 a. m., when a quarrel resulted over the price of a bottle of whiskey. One of the men drew a knife and wounded the two Indians who are now in the hospital. One of them was able to run for help and obtained the assistance of Louis Smith, who was passing along Esquimalt road in his automobile on the way to his home. He brought the man to the police station, and Detectives Heather and Murray went out and brought in the other injured man and the two are now in jail. The injured men were taken to the hospital in the police patrol wagon.

TRY OIL TO ABATE DUST NUISANCE

Oil Will Be Tried on Foul Bay Road as an Initial Experiment

The dust nuisance was brought up in the city council last night on a report by Alderman Gleason and the city engineer, indicating what steps had been taken to find a combatative element. They recommended that oil be used on a portion of the Foul Bay road as an experiment, and pointed out that they were on the lookout for a sprinkler that would cope with the difficulty.

In a short time Alderman Gleason will take a trip to California, and he promised the council last night that he would keep his eyes open in regard to dust remedies. Mayor Morley, however, thought they had not set the time for experimenting with the dust. They had been experimenting with it for years past and what was the result? The dust was still with them. He thought that instead of tinkering with a portion of one road they should adopt a general scheme for the use of oil. Oil had been used in the city before with highly satisfactory results, and he saw no reason why it should not do the same again. In other cities on the continent oil was largely used, and that surely was a recommendation for them to follow.

The report of the city engineer showed that there were five watering carts in the employment of the city, and he stated that such time as an up-to-date sprinkler could be obtained they would have to continue to use. There were several patent sprinklers on the market, but the difficulty was in getting to know the best one, and the one which would prove most suitable for the peculiar conditions prevailing in the city of Victoria. In about a year the city would be largely paved with asphalt and that would, of course, alter conditions considerably.

The suggested experiment on Foul Bay road will be carried out, but it is generally understood that some definite action will be taken immediately the result of it is known.

FLUMERFELT CUP.

British Columbia Ladies' Championship Won By Mrs. Walter Ricardo.

The Flumerfelt cup, representing the British Columbia ladies' golf championship, was won yesterday at the Oak Bay links by Mrs. Walter Ricardo. The runner-up was Mrs. G. Bird, who defeated Miss Combe in the semi-final after one of the best games of the series. The former holder of the cup was Miss Violet Pooley, who is now in the Old Country and who made such a good showing in the British tournament. There were twelve ladies in the local competition.

BRITISH GOLF CHAMPION.

Prestwick, Scotland, June 2.—H. H. Hilton, of the Royal Liverpool Golf Club, to-day won the British amateur golf championship for the third time, defeating E. A. Lassen of the Lytham Golf Club, by four up and three to play.

F. SCHNOTER, VICTORIA, B.C.

Walker had lots of friends, however, and he was given a great cheer when he won out. He will be a worthy member of the Canadian team and should bring honors to the Maple Leaf in the Old Country.

WESTERN BOY WINS A TRIP TO ENGLAND

George Walker, Vancouver, Will Represent Canada at Coronation Sports

Winnipeg, Man., June 2.—George Walker of Vancouver, will represent Canada at the wrestling games in connection with the coronation sports. The western boy won the trip to the Old Country by defeating A. McDonald, the inter-collegiate champion of Canada, at the Y. M. C. A. last night.

Last night's bout was nip and tuck for over 35 minutes, and right up to the last minute it was anybody's match. The college man was not in the best possible condition, however, and the coast boy wore him down by aggressive working. Walker secured the victory by a quick fall to the mat, forcing his opponent under and then rolling him over with a half Nelson and body hold. McDonald rolled out of a fall for a minute or so, but the Vancouver boy laid right on him and finally forced his shoulders to the mat.

The first three rounds were largely taken up with tests of strength between the two men and they went to the mat a couple of times and then on-ly for a few seconds. The fall came just two minutes after the start of the fourth round and it was somewhat of a surprise to the crowd to see the ease with which the Vancouver man secured it. Nearly everybody present was pulling for the Kingston man, and there were a number of Queen's men in the building cheering him along with the college yell.

Walker had lots of friends, however, and he was given a great cheer when he won out. He will be a worthy member of the Canadian team and should bring honors to the Maple Leaf in the Old Country.

SPORT NOTES

Mrs. T. W. Paterson has consented to distribute the prizes won in the Oak Bay regatta, to be held next Saturday. Cups have been promised by J. Wenger, J. Virtue and Chalmers & Mitchell.

The B. C. professional football championship may be decided to-morrow or another match, on the following Sunday, may be necessary. Lady Smith plays Nanaimo to-morrow at Lady Smith. If the home team wins or even draws, it will be awarded the title, as it is now two points ahead of Nanaimo, but if the latter wins the final will probably be played next Sunday.

One aviation meet has been held in Victoria, but in many ways the exhibition was not as satisfactory. The machine would not, as advertised, carry two passengers and there was an annoying delay before every flight. Another meet will in all probability be held here some time this summer and a display of a little higher order than that of this week is promised. Eugene Ely, a renowned California aeronaut, who distinguished himself last year by flying from the aviation field at San Francisco and alighting on the deck of the cruiser Pennsylvania, 16 miles distant, may possibly give an exhibition in Victoria on coronation day.

Jake Schaefer, son of the late "Wizard," defeated Marcus Catton, 600 to 408, in their 18 1/2 billiard match at Chicago, which was finished last night, winning the final block, 200 to 109. Schaefer went out in 27 innings, averaging 5 15/37.

General H. 20414, was sold yesterday to A. W. Parrish of Cleveland, Ohio, acting on behalf of the Russian government. The famous trotting station was owned by W. M. Parrish and Geo. Haas of Calgary, Alta., and the price paid was $15,000. According to Parrish, he will be shipped to Russia at the end of the season.

All is now ready for the second annual endurance contest of the Washington motor cycle club, which is to be run to-morrow from Seattle, Wash., to Vancouver, B. C., covering nearly 200 miles. The start will be made from Pioneer square at six o'clock to-morrow morning.

Harry Forbes, former bantamweight champion, and Jimmy Walsh, the English bantamweight, have been matched to fight June 15.

J. B. Joel, owner of Sunstar, the Derby winner, won $150,000 on the race. Dr. Bolton, a Trinidad agent to engage coolies in Calcutta, drew Sunstar in the Calcutta Turf Club's sweepstakes and won nearly $350,000. The second prize in the sweepstakes, $170,000, was won by Mr. Aubrey, master of the Warrington workhouse, whose salary is $2,000 a year. Steadfast ran in the place, but unfortunately Aubrey had sold half a share in the ticket for $5,000. Tickets in the sweepstakes cost $5.25 each. Nominally they are sold only to the members of the Calcutta Turf Club, but really could be obtained through any one of the East Indian banks.

Although the Victoria Country Club contemplated the bookmaker at the meet here last week, the Vancouver Jockey Club and the British Columbia Thoroughbred Association, which will control the racing at Minoru park this coming summer, will have only the pari-mutuels in operation. There will be no books or pools at the track.

The pari-mutuel betting in Paris, France, for 1911 reached a total of $74,999,997 from which $1,500,000 was deducted for charitable purposes, according to a report just issued.

AL. LARWILL DEAD AT TERMINAL CITY

Grand Old Man of Amateur Athletics Passed Away—Lacrosse Game Off

Vancouver, June 3.—At 1:30 yesterday morning, after seven weeks' illness, Al. Larwill, father of amateur sports in Vancouver, died in the Burrard sanatorium. As a consequence, the provincial lacrosse game, slated to be played this afternoon between Vancouver and Victoria, was postponed.

The late Mr. Larwill's connection with sports in Vancouver extended back into the early history of the city, as he was a resident of Vancouver for well over thirty years and possessed a provincial, if not a Canadian, record for close interest in the best forms of manly recreation. He will be remembered by many senior lacrosse players of the city, who received their education in the Canadian national game from him.

Mr. Larwill was born in Chatham, Ont., sixty-two years ago. He played cricket on the old Chatham team with Hon. D. M. Eberts and the late Chief Justice McCall. He later removed to Bay City, Mich., and then went to Ottawa, where he played baseball with the old Ottawas in 1873-4. From there, he went to Oshkosh, Wis., and organized a baseball club known as the Pastimes. In 1878 Mr. Larwill went to Winnipeg, where his mother and sister still reside, and joined the Stars. In the summer of '85, with Col. Rourke, now a resident of Vancouver, he organized the Ottawas of Winnipeg. A. E. Beck, a prominent resident of Vancouver, was a member of the Portage la Prairie club which played against the Ottawas that year.

In 1886 Mr. Larwill moved to Vancouver, and in the spring of '87 he organized Vancouver's first baseball club along with Mr. Beck and Art Lang, a young Winnipegger. He also took a prominent part in cricket and lacrosse and from then on has been identified with other branches of sport. He resided on the Cambie street grounds for twenty years and was known to everyone who took even a passing interest in amateur athletics. He was well-known in Victoria also.

A second heir to the estate of Ty Cobb, champion ball player of the American League, arrived at the Cobb home yesterday. The last addition is a nine-pound girl.

Ralph Frary's chance to umpire in the National League has come at last. Johnny Kent, partner of Frary in the cafe business in Spokane, received a telegram yesterday from President Lynch asking when Frary could report for duty. Frary is now umpiring in the Union Association and he has been notified by wire. When Frary accepted a position in the Lucas-McCloskey league, it was the understanding that he should be a free agent to accept any call from the National league. Reports recently from Boise, Salt Lake, and Butte are to the effect that Frary has been a big success. An eastern traveling man who happened to be in Salt Lake told Bob Glenn that in any decision made by Frary was taken as law.

Axtell Hayes, a fullblood Lapwai Indian, standing six feet tall and weighing about 180 pounds, will report to Spokane and be given a tryout for a backup position. Hayes has been catching splendid ball for the Lapwai team in the Nez Perce Valley League. He was signed up by President Cohn early in the spring, but asked the privilege of staying through the greater part of his own league's season.

M. Donlin, the actor-centre fielder, now proposes to quit elevating the stage and elevate the diamond. He hopes to get reinstated and play ball once more. For the last two weeks he

LIGHTNING STARTS FIRE.

New Orleans, La., June 2.—Eight oil tanks of the India Refining Co., several miles below this city, on the Mississippi river, containing 30,000 barrels of gasoline and 2,000 barrels of kerosene, valued at $250,000, were destroyed by fire last night and this morning. The fire was caused by lightning. At 6 o'clock the fire was still burning, but was under control.

Lives of umpires all remind us
We are well off with our graft,
And departing leave behind us
Something for an epitaph.

"YERE out!" bawled a blue suited man at the Polo Ground one day late last summer, jerking his thumb over his shoulder, as Fred Clarke, the Pittsburg manager, slid into the plate, trying to score from second base on a hit by Wagner to right field. The run might have saved the game for the Pirates. It was the last inning, and they were one behind the Giants. Clarke jumped up, stretched his hands apart four feet, rushed at Klem, umpiring, and said:—

"Safe by that much, you wall eyed inmate of the home for the near sighted."

The rest of the Pittsburg team started for the umpire. But the Giants had scampered for the club house, and the crowd began to spread over the field. The game was over. The bell had saved the umpire a violent argument.

This little comedy, or tragedy—it depends on the point of view—is enacted daily on ball fields all over the country. "The most abused individual in the world," the umpire has been called. It is a gleaming generality, but very true.

"If I had the choice of being an umpire or a clay pigeon, I would take the bird," somebody has said. "A clay pigeon can get shot only once."

Down at Coney Island any summer night one may see young men throwing baseballs at targets with colorado maduro complexions, the heads being stuck through holes in the canvas background. These men are paid to duck baseballs. While an umpire does not receive his stipend on account of his agility in dodging pop bottles and cushions, yet there have been times when these judges of play have been called upon to show some ability in this line. For when the American fan pays his six bits to go into a ball park and gets his rain check he feels that it entitles him to abuse the umpire. It is one of his privileges, even though an arbiter in the big leagues gets something more than $100 a week, and the hurler of sarcasm in draws down maybe but $15. Therefore, when a man signs as an umpire he expects to take some abuse as a part of his business. How much he gets depends on the man. Some take more and others less.

According to the old timers, baseball is getting civilized now. An umpire is seldom killed, and when it is done it always happens in some uncouth Western bush league that no one ever heard of. In fact, some umpires go through a whole season nowadays without having police protection to take them safely away from the grounds.

"Baseball ain't what it used to be," lamented one of those old school individuals the other day. "Why, I remember in Kansas City in '84 all those butchers used to come out to the ball park for a Sunday game with guns. As soon as a high fly was knocked by the visitors they would all start shooting at the ball in the hope that it would disconcert the man who was going to try to catch it. This very often did rattle him a trifle. The umpire would no more think of giving anything to the visiting club in those days than he would of committing suicide. Whenever he made a decision that the butchers did not like, they would all start shooting their guns off in the air, but the umpire never knew when some wild and inebriated spectator was going to get the fever and take a shot at him. They didn't use blank cartridges."

"I saw the manager of the old Boston club, then known as the Beaneaters, make a kick on a close play in Kansas City one Sunday afternoon, and one of his players came up to him and asked him to cut it out. Everybody was shooting off guns."

"Never mind this game. What do we care about the game? Let's get out of here alive," begged the player of his manager. "I have a wife and family at home."

"Oh, I tell you baseball ain't what it was," concluded the old timer.

And he was right. Why, there hasn't been a good mob scene since Henry O'Day, the war horse of the National League umpires, was attacked at the Polo Ground by the crowd on September 23, 1908, when he denied that Fred Merkle touched second base. He started to deny it from the field, and he concluded his statement under the grand stand, with a row of policemen protecting his position. It all happened so quickly that even O'Day did not realize his danger until a couple of "pop" bottles had been bounced off his head.

It requires the hurling of only one "pop" bottle for thousands to catch the idea. Some one threw the weapon of the fan at O'Day. Another threw a cushion. Then the effect of waving a red flag at a bull looks like a peace conference compared with the way O'Day incited the crowd. Those nearest to him put their faith in nature's weapons, and those handicapped by distance threw cushions and bottles. They all fought to get a shot at him. For the first time in his life the imperturbable O'Day was scared. He turned white and dropped his mask and chest protector and ran for the gate under the grand stand.

The crowd, seeing red, was fast closing in on him, and this avenue of retreat was pretty badly blocked. He had to run the gauntlet of blows and thrown missiles. The police rushed and drove the crowd away from his retreat. They went, looking for more victims, the Chicago players if possible, but these had heard about discretion being the better part of valor and had sought the shelter of their club house while O'Day was yet the centre of interest. Nothing is more irritable than a baseball mob, and nothing is worse, once it is worked up to a frenzy.

"Bill" Evans' Start.

One of the smoothest going umpires in either big league is William Evans, the American League official, known as "Billy" Evans. That shows he is liked. Whenever a man is called "Billy" he is popular. And it is true that all the players like this man and many of the spectators now, which is a really remarkable concession. Evans has had a very picturesque career. He wasn't always called "Billy." He went to Cornell, where he played football on the varsity team. That is a great little training for any man who expects to make a successful umpire. He then started in the newspaper business and picked up a little extra money on Sundays umpiring games for a semi-professional team which played on the lots of St. Louis. These games were known to be the toughest in the city, and three or four umpires had been carried away from them to the hospital before Evans began to work there. One day "Jimmy" McAlleer, now the manager of the Washington club and once the greatest outfielder in the game, wandered down on the lots, having heard of the mortification which usually set in at these games and the dangers to the umpire. They were famous for this, half the patrons attending for the fun of throwing things at the judge of play and demanding rain checks if they did not see an umpire mobbed.

McAlleer found Evans getting away with the job and still keeping his features in the same positions in which nature had placed them. This made an impression on the manager who then had charge of the destiny of the St. Louis club. He told "Ban" Johnson, the president of the American League, about this prodigy, and to Evans was given a chance in the big show. His first game was in Chicago, when the old timers in that club used to make a lot of trouble for umpires. There was a close play at first base along in the third or fourth inning, which Evans determined against the White Sox. "Jiggs" Donohue, the first baseman, now gone to the minors; "Nick" Altrock, the old pitcher, and some others came storming at Evans, the kid umpire, who is something of a dandy in his manner of dress.

"Call another one like that and I'll knock your block off," said Donohue.

"And I'll make you look like a plugged nickel," added Altrock.

"For fear I might disappoint you, gentlemen," said Evans, "and so that I won't take away any pleasure which you may anticipate in knocking off any block, I am going to give you an opportunity to make good. I will be in my room in the Great Northern Hotel from six until nine o'clock to-night. It is No. 343. Come right up, as many of you as want to, and knock my block off. Have a good time. That man at first base is out, and you get back to your positions before I put you out of the game."

They went back "beefing." And not one called on Evans that night. But in spite of this Evans got a bad start in the big league. He was calling them wrong because that was the way he saw them, and he was pretty generally disliked all around the circuit. Then one day in St. Louis some one hit him on the head with a pop bottle, that inevitable weapon of the fan in the fracas, and he was carried away to the hospital in an ambulance. Whatever else that bottle may have done to Evans, it made a good umpire out of him. He has been the best in the league ever since and has worked in two world's series. He seldom has any trouble, and all the players like him and treat him as one of them. He is probably the one man in the business for whom umpiring is a pleasure. Even the players make allowances for him, realizing that one cannot be right all the time, and that sometimes the hands are quicker than the eye.

A picturesque old umpire is "Bob" Emslie, of the National League. He is supposed to be partially blind now, but he continues to shoot every winter and win most of the money at the traps, and whoever heard of a blind man being a crack shot? A very pathetic thing happened at the Polo Ground one day in the season of 1909, which shows the cruelty of players and spectators. "Old Bob" was behind the bat during a game between the Giants and St. Louis. A bitter made a foul tip which struck Emslie on the head, and he went down unconscious. Players rushed toward him with water and sponges and began to mop his head. Sh! Emslie wears a wig, and some careless player pulled this off during the process of resuscitation.

shouted one fan as "Bob's" nude pate was exposed to view. "No wonder he has called so many of them wrong."

The old man, semi-conscious, realized what had happened and struggled to his feet. He grabbed for the wig to cover his naked head and hide his indignation, and then, although but a minute before unconscious, he fought like a tiger players and attendants. He is a game veteran.

It is an old trick for ball players to criticize the slight of umpires. A story is told about "Billy" McAlleer, an umpire who the players used to say was blind. One night he got an idea. He wandered away from the hotel and read the electric signs about a mile away, memorizing them. Then he returned. Several players were sitting about in front of the hotel smoking.

"Here's the blind ump," said one.

Reading the Signs.

It was just the opening for which McAlleer was waiting.

"Blind am I?" he asked. "Well, we'll see. Can you make that flag flying over there? See the electric sign near it? Can you read that?"

The players all tried and failed.

"Can't make it out, huh?" chuckled McAlleer. "Well, we'll see what I can do. Looks like A-S-T-O-R-I-A. Let's go see if that is right."

Of course it was. The players couldn't understand it.

"Thought you had pretty good eyes, didn't you?" grinned McAlleer.

He fooled them for a long time. At last some one noticed that he was missing every night after supper for a short time before he read his signs. He was getting his data. They shadowed him and found out how he did it.

A story is told of Connolly, an umpire in the American League. He was riding on a trolley car in Washington recently and the conductor was making change for him.

"Did I give you $2 or $3?" asked the conductor of the trolley car.

"I don't know," answered Connolly. "I can't see. At least every one says I can't."

Another story about the capital, "Silk" O'Loughlin, who says "Strike him," was umpiring a game there one day between New York and Washington. Some fan, with a voice like the fog horn of the Lusitania, had been on the umpire's hip during the whole afternoon.

New York changed pitchers late in the game.

"Who's the pitcher?" bawled the fan.

"You know everything else, you ought to know Quinn," flashed back O'Loughlin.

It must be remembered that, after all, umpires are human. Sometimes they lose their tempers and commit some overt act, but not often. "Tim" Hurst, who used to officiate in the American League, had the reputation for being one of the quickest tempered men in the business. One day in Chicago a fan had called him all the vile names that he could think of. Hurst stood it as long as he could, and then he walked across the field, up into the stand and jumped on the man who had been abusing him. It was an act that required nerve, for he was going single handed right into the stronghold of the enemy. The crowd attacked him and had torn off every stitch of his clothes before the police rescued him, battered and bruised.

One day at American League Park, in the season of 1909, Hurst called "Kid" Elberfeld, then with New York, out at the plate in the eleventh inning with what would have been the winning run. It was a close play and could have been decided either way. Now, Hurst and Elberfeld got along together about as well as gunpowder and a lighted match. Each has the same kind of a disposition. Elberfeld got up and landed his mitt on the point of the Hurst jaw. "Tim" came right back with a left, and there was a great little go until the players separated them.

It was finally the flare-up temper of Hurst that cost him his job in the league. He got into a dispute with "Eddie" Collins, the second baseman on the Philadelphia team, and as a consequence the whole thing was reported to Ban Johnson, and Hurst was dismissed.

McAlleer, who used to read the signs, was also very fast tempered. He was a boxer on the side and carried on umpiring as his regular profession. One day a fan in Philadelphia irritated McAlleer so that he seized a bat, hurled it into the grand stand and broke a man's arm. It cost him his job. It is one of the rules of the profession that an umpire cannot come back at his assailants.

Many funny stories are told about umpires. A man named Cleary, who used to umpire in the Kansas State League, had the habit of using one plug of tobacco a game. He was to work a double header one day between the two leading teams, and according to his custom, he brought two plugs to the park as ammunition. The day was beautiful and a big crowd was on hand. When nine innings had been played in the second game the score was tied, but Cleary had exhausted all his tobacco. He asked some one to go out and get him another plug, and every one thought that it was a great joke for an umpire to expect to have a favor done for him. All refused. It was still light and bright and clear.

"I can't umpire without eating tobacco," said Cleary, "and if no one will get me any I'll call this game."

And, according to the tale, he did. The next day the newspapers published the account of the game, and in parenthesis that it was called with the score a tie because the umpire had run out of chewing tobacco. The case was carried up to the National Commission, the Supreme Court of baseball, and the game stood a tie. It is the only case on record in which a contest was called because the umpire had no tobacco.

Stories could be strung out endlessly about these men, ostracized from all the world by their profession. Fans seldom realize that umpires are doing the best they can. A man in the far left field bleachers will abuse an umpire unmercifully on called strikes and balls when he has not a chance in the world to see whether a ball is good or bad.

How Umpires Are Chosen.

Umpires are required to go through a great deal of preliminary training before they can attain to positions in the big leagues. The judges of play are recruited from two sources—old players and minor league umpires. Good umpires are scarce. Some fans declare that the only good ones are dead. The business requires many qualities combined in the one man. First of all, he must have patience, unlimited patience and self-control. Then he must have a quick eye, ability to decide a thing one way or another on the spur of the moment, and, lastly, nerve.

The method of trying out umpires for service in the big leagues is a good one. The American League has a chief of umpires, one of the oldest in the business, and he scouts through the minors during the season and picks out likely looking men. It is the same system as that employed by big league clubs in the search for new players to replenish the gaps made by age and depreciation among the stars. But the order of things is reversed. The umpires are tried out in the fall and the young players in the spring.

In the National League several old baseball men keep an eye throughout the season on good umpires among the minor leagues. Then, after the lesser league seasons have closed, these selections get their chances in fast company in unimportant games between two teams that are hopelessly out of the race for the pennant. The candidates are tried out on the dog. It is the delight of players on teams which are out of the race to rag newcomers and make their lives miserable. It is the same spirit that prompts a sophomore to haze a freshman.

Recently umpires in both leagues have been obliged to have their eyes tested by oculists to assure their perfect sight. No regular system is followed in appointing umpires to certain games. The president of each league assigns his umpires to games for the season, and the schedule of the umpires is given out. Two always work together—in couples so that they get used to each other. These partners appear together all around the circuit. Sometimes the president of the league will judiciously switch his schedule when a certain umpire and one team have had a great deal of trouble. The Philadelphia National League Club had had difficulties with William Klem for years. There was an outbreak early this season, and Thomas Lynch, the president of the National League, changed the umpires for the Philadelphia game the next day.

When two veteran umpires work together they alternate each day between judging on the bases and behind the plate. The man behind the bat one day takes the field the next. But, if a new man is breaking in he is kept in the field until he gets the swing of the thing, as it is a harder job to work behind the catcher. The man with the mask and wind pad is the head umpire for that game.

The president of each league is the court before which squabbles between players and the umpires are decided. He takes the evidence and acts. His decision may be appealed to the National Commission when a club protests a game because of some decision of an umpire. This body, which is the most important in the machinery of modern baseball, seldom reverses the league president.

The National League umpires are O'Day and Brennan, Rigler and Finerman, Klem and Doyle, and Johnstone and Eason. The American League men with the indicators are Egan and Connolly, Evans and Mullin, O'Loughlin and Dineen, and Sheridan and Pettins. There are eight in each league when the staffs are recruited to war strength. Occasionally one of these men loses out, and an umpire has to work alone for a time, which is a very hard piece of business. "Old Bob" Emslie has not started to work in the National League yet, but he is still an umpire and will appear again as soon as he is well enough.

Some days umpires admit that they are bad. They just can't catch plays. It is an old illustration of the hand being quicker than the eye. But for the most part they are right. In a game between the Boston Americans and the New York Yankees, which was the most important series between the two clubs, the umpire behind the plate and "Joe" Wood was pitching for Boston. From directly behind the catcher in the press stand it seemed as if Egan had missed several perfect strikes which Wood had put over the heart of the plate. I saw Wood in the club house after the game.

"Egan was pretty bad to-day," I said. "He missed a lot that you put in the 'groove,' didn't he?"

"No, he was good to-day," replied Wood.

Yet he had been "beefing" all through the game, and so had his catcher. Ask any player, after a game that he has fought through, and he will usually tell you that the umpire was right. In the heat of the contest he fights. But afterward, when he has cooled off, he will tell you the truth.

A high place in the topography of the game is the day that the New York National League Club shut James Johnstone out of the Polo Ground because it was declared that he had had mercurial operations during the game. The case was carried up to the league's chances. He had been escorted from the grounds to his boudoir by the police on that day, August 6, 1908, and the next morning found him barred out. Emslie was his co-worker, and he was asked to umpire the game alone, which he rightly refused to do. Then McGraw suggested that a player from each side be chosen to officiate, and he selected Samuel Strang as his delegate. Chance declined the proposition, and both sides claimed the game, the whole thing ending in a big rumus.

So the umpire's lot is no bed of roses. In the old days in the wild leagues he was often escorted from the grounds by the police. With snakes, the umpire has always been regarded as the common enemy of man, a necessary nuisance. It is a job that takes nerve.

Mullin, a youngster, now umpiring in the American League, tried to break into the National and was being tried out late in 1909 at a game between the Giants and Philadelphia. He has a very deep voice and a grave professional manner, and the players and a grave professional manner, and the players from both sides started to rag him. It was an unimportant game. The Quakers are a bad team with an umpire. They kicked until this novice finally forfeited the game to New York. The players didn't consider the fact that this was his one chance to make good, and that they might change his whole life by getting him "in bad." As a rule the American baseball player and the American fan are very bad sports where an umpire is involved.

The men in the blue suits always have to face the pop bottle thrown by the man hidden in a crowd, the sort that does not come out in the open to fight. No one wants to enthrone the umpires as the players are enthroned. No one cares who they are. They sit into the grounds the back way and out again. Men like Evans have done a good deal to raise the estimation of the profession in the mind of the public. But did you ever hear any one care enough about an umpire to ask where he lived or whether he was married or any of those intimate questions?

READY FOR MAIDEN TRIP TO NEW YORK

Olympic Sails From Southampton June 14—Most Wonderful Vessel of the Age

One week from next Wednesday and the greatest liner in the world—the Olympic, Capt. Smith, of the White Star fleet, will cast off from the docks at Southampton and start on her maiden voyage across the Atlantic to New York. The initial trip of this mammoth four funnel ship, the largest ever to float on any ocean, which has just been completed by her builders at Belfast, is attracting much interest in marine circles all over the globe.

This monster of the sea has all the comforts and luxuries of the twentieth century and without the slightest doubt is, besides being the biggest steamship, the most elaborately and artistically fitted of any trans-Atlantic vessel. Such special features as swimming tank and Turkish baths are included in her make-up. She is reported to have all her berths taken for the first trip across and judging from that she will have 2,300 passengers aboard, as she has accommodation for 600 first, 500 second and 1,200 steerage.

On Thursday last the Olympic left Belfast for Liverpool, which is the first stretch of water that she has covered. Following a public inspection at the Mersey river port she will proceed to Plymouth and later to her home port, Southampton. Outside of the large engine room staff and the waiters, there will be a crew of a commander, seven deck officers and seventy seamen. She is 45,000 tons register, and has a length of 882½ feet and a width of 92½ feet.

Although her engines are larger than those on the Lusitania and Mauretania, the Olympic will only have a speed of slightly over 20 knots, as she is a great deal larger than the Cunard boats. The Olympic is practically an unsinkable liner as she is equipped with water-tight bulkheads and many other devices for preventing her going down.

It is expected that the Olympic will occupy about six days to complete the trip across to New York. She will consume several thousand tons of coal during that time and the staff of firemen who will have to feed the furnaces this amount, will be the largest ever carried by any vessel.

NEW LAW FOR STEAMERS.

State of Washington Enforcing New Regulation on Vessels Over Five Tons.

Seattle, June 2.—At a conference in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce on Thursday between a special commissioner representing the various transportation interests operating vessels on the waters of the State of Washington, and H. A. Fairchild, and Statistician O. O. Calderhead, of the Public Utilities commission, the new law governing owners and charterers of all craft of over five tons gross capacity, which becomes effective June 9, was discussed.

Mr. Fairchild made it clear and emphatic that all water craft, whether propelled by steam, gasoline or other power, were included and must file their rates and classifications on or

SEVERAL STEAMSHIPS DOCKING NEXT WEEK

Coming Seven Days Will Be as Busy as Past Week—Lonsdale Due To-morrow

According to the local agents of the Canadian Pacific line, the steamship Lonsdale, Capt. Bates, will dock here to-morrow from Salina Cruz and other southern ports. She is bringing north a cargo of freight consisting of about 1,500 tons. On Tuesday the Nippon Yusen Kaisha liner Tamba Maru will sail with a big cargo for the Orient and the Kamakura Maru, of the same line, is due the following day from the Far East. On Monday it is expected that the Georgia, which was recently purchased by a Japanese firm and which left Esquimalt yesterday, after being overhauled, for Comox to load bunker coal, will leave for Yokohama.

During the middle of the week there will be no arrivals or departures, but on Saturday the Blue Funnel liner Titan is due from Liverpool via the Orient and the new Osaka Shosen Kaisha steamship Canada Maru will sail.

Shipping at this port in regard to the deep sea vessels, is rapidly on the increase as can be seen by the number of arrivals here each week. During the past week many steamships docked, the Marana from Australia and the Canada Maru on Tuesday; the Oceano inward, and the Empress of India outward on Wednesday, and the Suveric and Coulson inward to-day.

COULSDEN PASSES IN.

Bound for Vancouver from New York, the steamship Coulson, of the New York-Vancouver line, called at the William Head quarantine station this morning and proceeded to Vancouver without calling here. She has a full cargo of general freight, including considerable steel rails.

Tip to elevator boy, two dozen eggs. Tip to bellboy, 12 bushels of barley. Breakfast, quarter ton of hay.

Tip to waiter, two bushels of potatoes. Luncheon, one sheep.

The lighthouse at Corunna, Spain, is believed to be the oldest one now in use. It was erected during the reign of Trajan, and rebuilt in 1634.

ENGINE TROUBLE DELAYS VESSEL

SUVERIC ARRIVES TWO DAYS BEHIND SCHEDULE

Brings Second Largest Shipment of Hemp Ever Brought Across the Pacific

Bringing the second largest shipment of hemp ever brought across the Pacific, the Bank liner Suveric, Capt. Cowley, arrived at the outer wharf this morning from Yokohama and other ports in the Orient. Although experiencing very little rough weather the steamship made an exceedingly slow passage, being nearly seventeen days coming across. She left Yokohama two days ahead of her schedule but only arrived here on time.

Heavy seas were encountered by the Suveric after clearing the coast of Japan but she did not meet any kind of a gale until after she had passed the Meridian, when a strong southeaster buffeted the ship severely. The storm, however, only lasted a day, and she was soon again in calm waters. Until five days before reaching this port the engineers of the ship were unable to get the regular speed out of the vessel and her delay is credited to faulty engines. The usual number of revolutions could not be got during the greater part of the voyage and it was only when land on this side was nearly in sight that the steamship settled down to her real gait.

Besides her large consignment of hemp, which consists of 21,000 bales bound for various parts of the States, the Suveric brought from the Far East a cargo of 6,000 tons of general freight. One hundred and fifty tons was discharged here, including rice, sugar, porcelain, matting and soy. On the deck of the big vessel was securely fastened a 60-foot launch which was loaded at Hongkong and which will be discharged at Vancouver, having been built for J. B. Wood, of Eagle Harbor. It weighs seventeen tons and will be one of the finest craft on the coast. Although stowed on the upper deck exposed to the seas and other rough elements of the Pacific it was not marred in the slightest. In the hold of the Suveric was another launch which will also be unloaded from the vessel at Vancouver. It is a thirty-footer and is for Capt. Beard, formerly of the Weir line, but now superintendent of the Vancouver Stevedoring Company.

Among the passengers who came across on the liner were: Mrs. Green, Mr. Northrop and Lieut. Lough, of the United States army stationed at Manila, who left the vessel at this port, and Mrs. Pike, Manila, and J. B. Wood, Hongkong, who will disembark at Vancouver. One hundred and thirty-four Chinese travelled as steerage, many of whom were bound for this port.

When the Suveric was leaving her way along on May 25 she passed two sailing vessels, one the American schooner Ada McKay, at 5 o'clock in the morning, in lat. 50.11 north and long. 161 west, steering north, and the other the American barquentine, the San Francisco, later in the day in lat. 50.11 north, long. 158.25 west, also steering north. Capt. Cowley spoke both of the vessels and they reported "all well."

AMUR TO CONTINUE.

Yesterday afternoon a telegram was received here by Capt. Troup from Capt. Locke, of the stranded steamer Amur, in which he stated that temporary repairs were being made to the vessel and that she would proceed to Skagway as soon as the work was completed. The Amur had aboard about twenty head of cattle, but these have been transferred to the Jefferson and taken on to the Alaskan port. An examination of the steamer's hull failed to reveal any great damage as a result of her running on a rock in Wrangell Narrows.

TOLD TO TAKE SWIM WITH SNOW FLYING

Unsympathetic Plumber Sued in County Court by F. Higgins Over Heating Plant

"Well, people would come to me and say, 'How's your system?' and I told them it was all right because I thought he was an honest man," said Frank Higgins in the witness box of the county court yesterday, but he had altered his opinion later, when after his system had been out of order for over a year he complained about it again and was told to take a swim.

What at first sounded like a medical case to the casual listener to the miscellaneous county court proceedings in the morning, resolved itself into an ordinary plumbing dispute in which Frank Higgins, solicitor, is the plaintiff, and Andrew Sheret, plumber, is the defendant. The system referred to does not affect Mr. Higgins' health, although H. A. Maclean, K. C., for the defence, tried to show it had affected the witness's temper. The system which is the bone of contention now, and has been for two years, is the hot water heating system which Andrew Sheret installed in the Higgins home at Victoria Crescent, and for which he received in payment $700, giving an undertaking that there would be no defects.

There were defects, and complaints were frequent, said the plaintiff in court, and finally after he and Mrs. Higgins came back from a trip the system was worse than ever, and he telephoned the defendant to say that the water from the tanks was overflowing and spoiling the ceilings of the rooms below. Mr. Sheret replied: "Oh, go take a swim," according to plaintiff.

Instead of attempting to cure his system by taking a swim Mr. Higgins consulted J. C. Corbin, of Seattle, and the Colbert Plumbing Company, and had the system repaired to his satisfaction at a cost of $135, and he is suing Mr. Sheret to recover this amount.

Mr. Maclean drew from the plaintiff the fact that he had recommended Mr. Sheret to people, but witness said his recommendation was not based on the defendant's ability.

"Then was it based on his personal appearance?" asked Mr. Maclean.

"His physical make-up don't appeal to me," replied Mr. Higgins, and went on to explain that he recommended Mr. Sheret because he considered he would do honest work and carry out his guarantee, but to be told shortly before the snow fall in 1910 to take a swim to cure his plumbing system was altogether too much.

A number of witnesses were heard, the court sitting until 7 o'clock last night. The plaintiff called Thomas Hooper and his superintendent of construction and other witnesses.

The defence was that the work had been done according to specifications of contract and to the satisfaction of the architect who supervised the installation. The defendant further asserted that it was fourteen months after the work was completed before a complaint was made to him of the alleged inefficiency of the plant.

At 7 o'clock last night Judge Lampman reserved his decision. Hon. A. E. McPhillips, K. C., appeared for the plaintiff, and H. A. Maclean, K. C., for the defence.

APPEALS IN THREE VICTORIA ACTIONS

Kellett v. B. C. Marine Railway; City Against Levy; and Car Accident Case

The British Columbia Court of Appeal will sit at Victoria this month, commencing on Tuesday morning, when three appeals of local supreme court cases are to be heard. The case of Kellett against the B. C. Marine Railway Company is listed. The plaintiff who is the appellant also was injured while using a defective tool for the company, having been instructed by the foreman to continue working with the instrument. As a result he lost an eye, and the eye was produced at the trial in the supreme court before the chief justice of British Columbia, and from it was taken the piece of steel which caused the injury. A jury gave plaintiff a verdict for $2,700, but the chief justice held on reserved points of law that there was no case for a jury, and accordingly ordered a dismissal.

The city of Victoria is undertaking the appeal of the liquor by-law case against J. Levy, proprietor of the Levy's restaurant, Government street, in which Mr. Justice Gregory found the by-law to be bad and dismissed the case. The case of Robertson against the B. C. Electric Company is also listed for reopening, and is being appealed by the defendant company.

The plaintiff was awarded $150 by a jury before Judge Lampman and the judge decided on all points of law raised by A. E. McPhillips, K. C., for the defence. The claim was for injuries sustained when the company's car collided with defendant's wagon on Fort street and injured him.

There are six appealed cases from the jurisdiction of Mr. Justice Clement, as follows:

Muller vs. B. E. E. R. Co.; Mitchell vs. Rat Portage Lumber Co.; Lee vs. Greenhaugh; Allen vs. Class; Nasmith vs. Bentley; McLeod vs. Barrett; Vancouver Coal Co. vs. Mundell; and six additional appeals from other judges' decisions.

NAVY YARD CASES WILL BE REMANDED

J. A. Aikman to Claim Postponement Agreed to With Defence Owing to Assizes

The preliminary hearing in the case of William Houston and the trial before the magistrate of Charles J. V. Spratt, both accused of being in possession for admiralty stores, knowing them to have been stolen, which are set for hearing in the police court on Tuesday morning next, will be again remanded owing to the inability of J. A. Aikman, appearing for the prosecution, to attend. For the same reason the charges of a like nature against Oliver Richards and John Day will be remanded.

Mr. Aikman is engaged at the assizes as crown prosecutor in most of the trials, and as the assizes commence on Monday Mr. Aikman's time will be fully occupied in the assize court. When the defence obtained a remand on Tuesday last, because of the absence on business of W. J. Taylor, K. C., who was drawn into the case of Spratt at the last hour, Mr. Aikman stipulated that in agreeing to it, he would only consent on condition that the defence agreed to give him a further remand in the event of his engagements at the assizes and court of appeal conflicting with the police court engagement of Tuesday.

Yesterday, when in the police court dates were being set for a remanded case, Tuesday was suggested and was about to be set aside owing to the listing of the navy yard cases on that day, when Mr. Aikman informed the magistrate that the navy yard cases would not be taken that day, as he would avail himself of the right to a postponement owing to his engagements in other courts.

IN DARKEST EUROPE.

International Free Love League With Thousands of Members.

Many fashionable ladies of Bucharest, Roumania, have recently received invitations to join a society known as the "Women's International Free Love League." The league undertakes to put them into communication with kindred spirits who will supply the deficiencies of husbands who fail to understand the complex nature of their wives.

The league's motto is "Equal rights for all," and ladies are assured that the heads of the league will be in a position to put them into communication with their affinities. Ladies are asked to subscribe to the funds of the league whether they are in immediate need of its services or not, as it is impossible to know when such a need may arise.

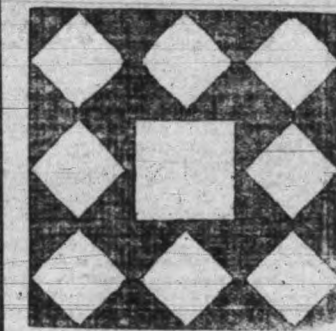

A husband of one of the ladies who received the league's circular, put himself into communication with the police. The police traced the circulars to Milan, where it was discovered that a certain Hungarian and her Italian husband were the founders of the league. The woman, questioned by the police, said that the league had thousands of members in every country of the world. She explained that the consolation offered to the ladies was of an entirely spiritual nature, and that her object was merely to supply the demand for sympathy caused by the brutal obtuseness of most husbands. The police decline to take any action against the league.

The spectacle of a wife waiting in deputation upon her husband is surely unique in public affairs. But Lloyd George recently received a deputation of Welsh Liberal women to discuss the Women's Suffrage Bill, and among the ladies forming the deputation was Mrs. Lloyd George, who it might be thought has the private ear of the Chancellor of the Exchequer if anybody has.

Start on it tonight.

Think of it. If you solve this puzzle correctly you will receive, IN ADDITION to one of the above elegant prizes, which you get ABSOLUTELY FREE, a bona fide cheque, as explained above.

THIS GRAND FREE DISTRIBUTION OF PRIZES IS OF VITAL INTEREST TO ANY HOME WITHOUT A PIANO.

The piano manufacturers and dealers have for many years tried to reduce the selling expense of musical instruments. The old way of selling pianos, pulling door bells, canvassing, paying music teachers' commissions, etc., have all been eliminated, and it is now a question of the best advertised piano. Any thinking person will readily appreciate that any manufacturer of any good piano can well afford to make the above liberal offer if by so doing he can make his instruments as well known in this vicinity during the next three or four weeks as would take three or four years by ordinary methods of advertising. The maker's name being familiar to the piano purchaser, and the piano purchaser knowing the true value of the piano, makes it possible to sell a certain number.

The manufacturers of these pianos correctly believe that the best way to introduce them to this market is to place this large appropriation for advertising purposes directly among piano buyers—for whose benefit this contest is run—where it will do the most good, rather than employing world-famous demonstrators such as Pederewski and others at a fabulous expense and making the people pay for such methods by asking heavily inflated prices for the pianos. In order to do this they have inaugurated this great contest, in which each contestant has a chance to win one of these valuable prizes.

The manufacturers for whom we are conducting this contest want you to know that all answers will be considered, first as to the correct answer; second, as to the neatness of the answer; that only one answer will be considered from one family, and that in the event of a tie identical award will be made. We want to especially assure you that you should not lose a moment in mailing or bringing your answer to us. All solutions must be in our hands by 4 p.m. June 7, 1911. Try for one of these valuable prizes, which will be given free to successful contestants.

A SPECIAL WORD TO CONTESTANTS

Three to five disinterested citizens of Victoria will be chosen to act as judges and will make the awards. The names and addresses of these winners will be on display and open to everybody.

$500 Reward Will cheerfully be paid to any charitable institution of this city if anyone can prove and will establish the fact that these handsome and valuable prizes are not actually going to be awarded, or that this is not the grandest opportunity piano buyers will be offered to save piano money.

Rev. Thomas Ewing Sherman, S. J., is the guest of the Right Rev. Bishop Macdonald. He will preach at St. Andrew's cathedral at the high mass, 10:30
a. m. to-morrow. Doubtless many of the residents of this city who are familiar with the history of General Sherman would like to hear and see his son. Father Sherman will be here during the month of June, and will preach each Sunday at the high mass.

The marriage was celebrated very quietly on Thursday afternoon in the Sixth Avenue Methodist church, Vancouver, of Mr. Andrew Stewart and Mrs. Margaret Croft of Victoria. The church was beautifully decorated with palms and flowers for the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. E. W.
Stapleford. The bride wore her travelling costume of grey broadcloth with a flower toque and was attended by Mrs. McLagan, Clayburn, as matron of honor, who wore a gown of black and white voile and a black velvet hat with plumes. Mr. William Noble was best man. After the ceremony the bridal party was entertained to dinner at the Lutch Grill, where the guests also included the bride's son, Mr. Henry Williams Croft, and the groom's sister, Mrs. Macfarlane. The party were afterward the guests of Mr. Noble at the Mary Garden concert, and Mr. and Mrs.
Stewart left for a trip to Seattle and Portland. They will be at home in Victoria after September.

MILLIONAIRE ECCENTRICITIES.

Fanciful Methods Adopted by Newly Rich to Disguise Fortune.

Frederick Townsend Martin, one of the leaders of the New York "Four Hundred" is leading a crusade against the vulgar ostentation of certain wealthy persons in America. He has brought together an interesting collection of facts, in support of his crusade, which he publishes in Everybody's Magazine. Here are a few instances:

The owner of a black and tan dog valued at $50 recently gave a dinner in the dog's honor, and at the conclusion of the banquet, presented the animal with a collar, containing 700 small diamonds, which cost $15,000.
The guests shouted their approval, and the dinner was considered a great success.

A New York parvenu recently gave a dinner, and roused his guests to enthusiasm by the device of serving the cigarettes at the end of the meal wrapped in $100 notes.

An embryonic actress attracted the attention of one of the idle rich. He showed her with gifts, which, during three years, cost him $1,000,000, at the end of which time they parted.

The wife of a multi-millionaire, who wears a necklace that cost more than $600,000, recently gave birth to a son.
The woman retained four high-priced physicians as part of a large staff hired for the exclusive care of the infant. The physicians examined the child four times a day, and issued bulletins after each examination of its health.

Deciding to have a home in New York a millionaire expended $2,000,000 on a house. To make a garden he bought for $100,000 another house next door, and spent $500,000 on the garden.
The millionaire's bedstead is of carved ivory and ebony, inlaid with gold. The bedroom walls, carved and decorated, cost $65,000. The ceiling cost $20,000 and ten pairs of curtains costing $2,000 a pair hang in the room.
The wardrobe cost $1,500, the dressing table $65,000, the washstand $3,500, the bed hangings $50 a yard, the chimney piece and mantel $8,000, and the four doors in the room $10,000.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By Ruth Cameron

My hand to the man or woman who knows when to admit ignorance. Among a group of us the other day was a young man who,
though an exceptionally ambitious and knowledge-loving person, has not had great educational advantages. In the course of the conversation someone used the word "deterrent." In speaking to him, "don't you find that rather a deterrent in your work, Mr. W?"

A puzzled look flitted over his face.
Evidently it was a new one to him.
Nine men out of ten, seeing that the question plainly expected an affirmative answer, would have chanced it and said, "Yes, I do," or some similar bluff.

He, being a one-in-ten man, hesi-tated but an instant and then said frankly, "I don't think I know just what 'deterrent' means."

"I don't know what the rest thought, but I'm sure for myself, that I never admitted him so much as at that moment."

Of course, someone promptly defined "deterrent," so now he does know what it means.

That's the difference between him and the other nine. They would not have known the next time the word came up and would have had to bluff again.

By confessing his ignorance he put an end to it.

By hiding theirs, they gave it a new lease of life.

"Learn to say 'I don't know,' my boy," is as needful a command, in its way, as "Learn to say 'no.'"

In the course of conversation things are frequently said, explanations given, references made, information conveyed that we do not fully understand the first time.

On such occasions most of us are apt to pretend to have understood; to say, "Oh, yes, I see," when, like the blind man, we "didn't see at all."

That's the easiest way, of course.

But for the man who wants his mind to grow, it's the wrong way.

For not only does he lose the information, but he atrophies his mind muscles by not insisting that they shall grasp everything that's said.

It seems so simple to say, "Pardon me, but I didn't quite understand that," and most people have enough of the didactic in them not to mind repeating a thing if they can feel they are instructing someone.

It seems almost wrong to me to allow one's self to read and pass by a paragraph in a book without understanding it. It seems to me that it is cowardly and slovenly not to go back and read it until one does understand.

You all know the old Arabian proverb:

"He who knows, and knows that he knows, is wise—follow him."

He who knows, and knows not that he knows, is asleep—wake him."

He who knows not, and knows that he knows not, is simple—teach him."

He who knows not, and knows not that he knows not, is a fool—shun
him."

For present purposes I should like to temporarily amend the last two lines of that, to:

"He who knows not, and admits that he knows not, is teachable—teach him."

He who knows not, and won't admit that he knows not, is a fool—shun
him."

Sugar is found more or less in nearly all vegetable substances.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

SUGGESTS PURCHASE OF LE ROI MINE

Big Shareholder in Le Roi No. 2 Believes It Would Solve Difficulty

Nelson, June 2.—That the solution of the problem of the successful operation of the Le Roi mine at Rossland is its purchase by the Le Roi No. 2 Co., is the opinion of Col. H. G. Burrows, one of the largest shareholders of the latter company. Col. Burrows reached the city from Rossland where he made an inspection of the Le Roi No. 2.

"I was very pleased with what I saw of the mine," said Col. Burrows, "and feel that the company has now passed the stage when it might have been regarded as a pure speculation, and that it is now one of the most promising speculative investments that I know of. For the past three years the stockholders have received dividends of 20 per cent. per annum and from the manner in which the present scheme of development is showing up I think that there is every reason to hope that we shall receive equally satisfactory returns for many years to come. There is plenty of absolutely virgin ground belonging to the company which will later be developed in addition to the several veins which are now under exploitation with such good results."

Discussing the Le Roi mine Col. Burrows said: "The solution of the difficulty appears to me to be the purchase of the property by the Le Roi No. 2 company. I believe that there is still a vast store of ore which can be commercially mined in the Le Roi and that if the property were taken hold of by the Le Roi No. 2 company good returns could be made to shareholders. The question, however, really resolves itself into that of the price the Le Roi company would ask for the mine."

As a shareholder in the Le Roi No. 2, he is also heavily interested in the Van Rai mine. "I am very pleased to hear such good reports on the Van Rai," he said. "The directors of the Le Roi No. 2 have always had a great deal of faith in the Silverton property and really acquired it some years ago when it was believed that the Rossland property was practically worked out. Of course the discovery of new veins which now give no indication of working out on the Le Roi No. 2 has taken away the necessity of having the Van Rai to fall back on for dividends but it is naturally very pleasant for me, as a stockholder, to feel that we own such an excellent mine as the Van Rai in addition to our star dividend producer."

SMELTER IDLE

FOR THREE WEEKS

Shipment of Eastern Coke is Expected to Arrive at Grand Forks Shortly

Nelson, June 2.—The Granby Smelter will be idle for the next three weeks. Only some thirty men, mostly mechanics, are being kept at work at the smelter.

The company's mines at Phoenix ceased shipping ore the first of the week, and the majority of the men were workless, but contrary to the usual custom in such cases, were not paid off. Later notices were posted at the mines that work would be resumed on June 15.

The Granby is procuring coke from Cowansville, Pa., an order having been placed for 20,000 tons and if there is no settlement of the Crow's Nest trouble before this supply is exhausted, the company will continue to procure coke from the East. Coke from the East should arrive in Grand Forks shortly and the company hope to have six furnaces working by June 15. This will mean practically a three-week shut down. The company intends to operate six furnaces steadily with Pennsylvania coke until the Crow's Nest trouble is settled.

For the past week the Granby treated 11,825 tons of ore from the company's mines. For the year to date the smelter has treated 484,722 tons of ore.

B. C. Copper of Greenwood is using Eastern coke entirely at present, although they have a large reserve of Coleman coke on hand at the works and it is stated that the smelter will be run entirely on this until the trouble in the Crow's Nest is adjusted. A large number of the miners at the company's Lone Star mine are idle, and it is the intention of the company to curtail shipping from this mine until such a time as they are receiving Crow's Nest coke again. The smelter is operating to its full capacity at present.

INJURED BY EXPLOSION.

Cumberland, June 2.—Andrew Williamson, a workman in the mines, met with an accident that will leave him maimed for life.

The accident occurred through a box of caps exploding in his hands, severing the left hand at the wrist, taking off two fingers of the right hand, destroying the left eye, and inflicting painful wounds on the breast. Mr. Williamson has a wife and family in Scotland.

At first it was thought that there was no hope of his recovery, but the unfortunate man is now making good progress towards recovery in the local hospital.

CANADIAN MAGAZINE.

From the standpoint of all-round interest, the June Canadian Magazine is one of the best numbers issued in many months. The first article is entitled "A Canadian Highway of Power," by Clayton M. Jones. It describes the wonderful power distribution system which is operated by the Ontario Power Commission, and is well illustrated. Victor Morin, of Montreal, contributes a most interesting article, entitled "Our Printed Pressures," dealing with rare old manuscripts. The title of the Red Chamber is the title of a Canadian cent appreciation of the Canadian Senate, by George Clarke Holland, chief reporter for that Chamber. Professor William T. Allison has a comprehensive review of the works of John Galt, who was at one time connected with the Canada Company. "Railway Construction Up to Date" is the title of an article by Cy Warman, describing the work done so far on the Grand Trunk Pacific. Miss Katherine Hale contributes her annual review of the Music of the Season in Canada. There are short stories by Theodore Goodridge Roberts, Thomas Stanley Moyer, Lillian Leveridge, and H. O. N. Belford.

New Westminster, June 2.—The jury empanelled by Captain Pittendree to inquire into the case of the late George H. Wilson, whose body was found in the brush in the far end of Queen's Park a week ago last Sunday, returned a verdict to the effect that the deceased came to his death at his own hands, while temporarily insane.

TRIBUTE TO PASTOR.

New Westminster, June 2.—Several hundred of the members of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church gathered in the church lecture hall to bid fare thee well to J. S. Henderson, who left on Wednesday on a three months' holiday to England. Earlier in the day the board of managers had presented to Mr. Henderson a purse of one thousand dollars as a tangible token of the appreciation of his work. The evening was passed with a splendid musical programme and speeches of pleasant memories.

WAS INSANE.

New Westminster, June 2.—The jury empanelled by Captain Pittendree to inquire into the case of the late George H. Wilson, whose body was found in the brush in the far end of Queen's Park a week ago last Sunday, returned a verdict to the effect that the deceased came to his death at his own hands, while temporarily insane.

A letter addressed to Provincial Police Constable O'Dwyer was found on the body asking the officer to look after the effects of the deceased and to notify the brother of the dead man privately of what had occurred.

TRIBUTE TO PASTOR.

New Westminster, June 2.—Several hundred of the members of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church gathered in the church lecture hall to bid fare thee well to J. S. Henderson, who left on Wednesday on a three months' holiday to England. Earlier in the day the board of managers had presented to Mr. Henderson a purse of one thousand dollars as a tangible token of the appreciation of his work. The evening was passed with a splendid musical programme and speeches of pleasant memories.

E. H. SOTHERN JULIA MARLOWE
These two eminent American co-stars will appear at the Victoria Theatre on Monday, June 12, in "Romeo and Juliet."

Mayor Morley would like to see a censorship established in Victoria, it seems. He does not voice the desire because of anything he has heard of seen upon the stage but because of some vague "on dit." Complaints have been made to him, he says, but so little acquainted is his worship with matters of the stage that, although one of the subjects of complaint referred to a production which had been here but a week before, he could not differentiate the name of the play from that of the actress. Even then he only had half of a personal acquaintance which was that of a play.

Censorship here or anywhere, might theoretically be a real power for good but would more likely become a mighty instrument of oppression, a means to the ends of bungling mediocres, a source of ridiculous interference on the part of illiterate or stupid people and of vexation to worthy writers and artists who desire to serve only the general good, to advance truth, to emphasize a living phase of their art or treat a momentous question of morals boldly and freely.

There have been spasmodic attempts at censorship here and there, and as a general rule it has been exercised by those little qualified by intelligence, breadth in mind, taste and disinterestedness for such serious functions. Well-meaning though these men often are, it is no affront to say that they are not always men to whom such grave and such comprehensive responsibilities ought to be entrusted.

The meeting of these would be considered a heavy obligation by a man of wide cultivation, great reading, accurate judgment, profound sense of duty and lofty instincts. He would face a thousand perils and to none would they be no apparent as to himself. He would exercise extraordinary caution lest precedent or inherited ideas should impel him to impatient dismissal of the claims of the artist who has treated an original or a dramatic theme in a candid, startling, but essentially sincere and salutary manner, however much he may dislike theme or treatment. He would exercise nothing less than a pious regard for the preservation of the proper liberties of the people as expounded through the medium of the drama. He would certainly be consistent and would not put the ban on a grave and instructive work of morals visible at a playhouse that maintains the most decorous standards and at the same time ignore the obscenities perpetrated in a burlesque.

Judging from the exercise of civic censorship in the past—we have two recent cases, one in Toronto and one in Boston in mind—the playwright who chooses to treat of vicious personages and sordid lives, to deal with them sincerely, austere, morally, artistically, is to find his work barred from the stage. The managers and players who join hands with him to mount and act his piece are to find themselves under like condemnation. At the same time a host of light plays, musical plays especially, get by in which suggestion, in all shades from delicately veiled to broad, is rampant. We may grin at or sentimentalize over irregularities hinted at on the stage; we must not be allowed to think or be made to think seriously of phases of life that exist, however much they may be deplored. The idea that certain subjects may be jested about with impunity but cannot be discussed without demoralization is one of the fundamental errors of Anglo-Saxon hypocrisy.

New York dispatches announce the marriage at her home there on Thursday of Mary Manning, to Frederick E. Wadsworth, a millionaire boat-builder of Detroit. Miss Manning obtained a divorce from James K. Hackett last year, retaining the custody of her five-year-old daughter. She is a native of London, the daughter of Richard Friend, and is 32. Wadsworth is 43 and has been married before.

Miss Manning's marriage is said to be a bitter blow to Hackett, who has hoped for a reconciliation. About the time of the divorce Hackett went through bankruptcy, and among his debts was $60,000 owed to his wife.

Sir W. S. Gilbert passed away suddenly at his London home on Monday last, having outlived his distinguished collaborator, Sir Arthur Sullivan, by several years. Gilbert has been a prominent figure in the world of music and letters for over forty years. He is best known as the author of the librettos of some of the most popular light operas that have entertained the English-speaking races for the last generation, among them "Pinafore," "The Mikado," "The Gondoliers," "The Yeomen of the Guard," "Ruddigore," "Utopia," "Patience," and "Princess

CHARLES CONNORS
Of the Allen Players, Now Playing a Stock Engagement at the Victoria Theatre.

Ida. His most successful writings were those done in collaboration with Sullivan. These two men working together produced some of the best of light operas, the names of which are household words.

The famous playwright was born in London in 1826, and studied law at London University, being admitted as a barrister of the Inner Temple in 1864. Soon he turned to writing and his first work appeared in 1870. His rise into a prominent position among the writers of the day was a brilliant one and King Edward was a birthday honor knighted the famous author in 1907.

The excellent performances which the Allen Players are giving at the Victoria theatre are deserving of a better patronage. The company is equal to any stock organization which has been here and its leading woman, Miss Verna Felton, is a decidedly clever young actress. She has not only got hold on the outward essentials of the dramatic art but she shows a capacity for discussing and expressing the subtler shades of character which too few artists have. With this equipment, with her enthusiasm and with a generous share of personal charm and beauty Miss Felton will yet be heard of in a larger sphere.

"The Yankee Girl" has no particular reason for being, except as a vehicle for the talents of Miss Blanche Ring. When Miss Ring sees fit to drop her it is safe to say she will never be heard of again. There have been worse musical comedies, of course, and while it is not the best of that overdone class of musical plays—however popular the class may be—it is a pleasing enough little thing. The main point is that it brought Miss Ring to the Victoria theatre this week and enabled a well-filled house to get acquainted with her. Miss Ring has made several dittos popular—"Yip-I-Liddy-I-Ay" and "Rings on My Fingers" for instance—but she is a better comedienne than singer. It may be that her husband, who was a well known dramatic critic (Miss Ring is Mrs. Frederick McKay in private life), will be able to convince her that she is unfair to herself in refraining from taking up comedy and dropping the musical one.

Miss Ring has a charming personality. She is unaffected and self-possessed on the stage, she bubbles over with mirthfulness and gaiety. She is all buoyant high spirits; she is humorous easily and without effort; animated with clownery; vigorous but never coarse. Her presence is decidedly wholesome and tonic, and whatever the secret of her "way" with her audiences she never fails in her appeal to them. Personality counts in musical plays, and Miss Ring has had great good fortune in them.

The bodies of a young man and woman were found in a stream near the mill at Lloyd, Essex. On the body of the man was found a pocketbook, in which were written the words, "We have decided to put an end to ourselves as we can't live without each other—Sus and Alf." The bodies have not been identified.

A GRAND MEDICINE FOR OLD PEOPLE

"Fruit-a-tives" Restores the Health and Strength of Youth.

Grande Ligne, Que., Jan. 2, 1910.
"I heartily recommend 'Fruit-a-tives' to all who suffer from constipation and the painful consequences. Piles. I am now over 80 years of age and suffered for more than ten years with Constipation and Piles. I tried all kinds of remedies, but nothing cured me.
"About four years ago I received a sample of 'Fruit-a-tives.' After taking a few doses I felt that 'Fruit-a-tives' were doing me good. As 'Fruit-a-tives' were not sold here then, I wrote to Ottawa for several boxes.

my Bowels were regular—and the Piles had disappeared.
"N. JOUBERT."

By taking one "Fruit-a-tives" tablet half an hour before meals—or one or two at night—old people can correct all Stomach, Liver and Kidney Troubles. "Fruit-a-tives," the famous fruit medicine, is mild and gentle in action—pleasant to the taste—yet no other remedy has been found to be so effective in keeping old folks in good health. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At all dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives, Limited, Ottawa.

The big money there is in it, and the last of the old line to succeed is Pearl Young, who ranked as high as a singing soloist that she was the soprano soloist of the John Philip Sousa band of many memories. With the addition of the pictures there will be a complete and varied bill, got together specially for genuine entertaining purposes.

"The House of a Thousand Candles." The Allen Players are presenting some well-known successes among their repertoire during their short stock engagement at the Victoria theatre. Two heavy bills have already been given, and they are now billing two good comedies for the coming week.

On Monday and Tuesday Meredith Nicholson's famous comedy-drama, "The House of a Thousand Candles," is slated for presentation. This is the first time the dramatization of Meredith Nicholson's novel has ever been produced by a stock company on the Pacific coast, and the Allen Players are particularly proud of their production.

Judging from the way they have handled their previous plays, there is no reason to doubt that this one will meet with the approval of the theatre patrons of Victoria.

For Friday and Saturday nights the company is going to present "A Stranger in a Strange Land," one of Broadhurst's famous comedies. "A Stranger" is a peculiar bill, and deals with a mix-up which is occasioned by the advent into England of a real American Indian and two "faked up" redskins. It is one continuous laugh from start to finish, and any person who cannot enjoy the comedy in it is certainly not entitled to look on the comic side of life.

"The Cat and the Fiddle."

The musical review, "The Cat and the Fiddle," of which so much has been written and said, comes to the Victoria theatre on Wednesday and Thursday, June 7 and 8. It takes one back to the days of childhood, reminding of the quaint old nursery rhymes mother used to sing when we wowed the sandman.

A company of forty people, comedians, singers, dancers and a handsome chorus are promised with "The Cat and the Fiddle." New and novel numbers are brought forth, prominent among which are "Mother Goose Baby Dolls," said to be one of the most unique and original skills that has been introduced into musical comedy in many a day. All fabled characters of "Mother Goose," "Little Bo Peep," "Jack Sprat," "Tom Piper's Son," "Little Red Riding Hood," etc., are presented in life-like manner, each with their little ditty in rhyme and song, and it is said that the number never fails to get repeated encores.

Another new electrical singing-number and song hit is "My Maid in the Moon," and others include "Rosey Dreams," "In the Shadow of an Old Date Tree," "1822" and many others.

There are nineteen scenes of splendor and magnificence, ranging from a rural scene in old New York state to the mystic realms of the imaginative island of Eye.

The cast is headed by Harry B. Watson, a promising and rising young comedian, the Boylans, Rose and Arthur Matty, Geo. E. Hart, J. O. Campbell, Geo. E. Wakefield, the Gotthard Bros., and other extravaganza players of merit. The lyrics and music are all original and were provided by Carleton Lee Colby.

Sothern and Marlowe Coming.

The welcome engagement of E. H. Sothern and Julia Marlowe at the Victoria theatre, June 12, will give the public the rare opportunity of seeing their massive Shakespearean production, "Romeo and Juliet."

It will be a keen pleasure to the public to welcome Mr. Sothern and Miss Marlowe. It is fully realized that the combination of two such acknowledged artists as these is a remarkable event. Added to so unusual an opportunity of seeing these two representative actors of the present day stage appear together is the fact that they are blending their efforts to the presentation of the highest works the drama affords, and to reflecting these works in the most elaborate manner possible. It is now becoming realized that it is a necessary education to see the works of Shakespeare presented by these stars, and an event as enjoyable as it is wholesome and valuable. Among the many advance subscriptions for seats are evidenced orders of large theatre parties from all the local schools and universities of nearby cities.

It is promised that Mr. Sothern and Miss Marlowe will bring here the entire production of their play, and will present it upon the same elaborate order of merit as is seen by the cast during the long engagements these two famous stars play yearly.

The box office sale for this engagement opens on Monday.

Chevalier's Visit.

The fact that Western Canada is coming to occupy a prominent position on the map of the amusement world, and that English artists are beginning to recognize the importance of this field, is shown by the attractions that have visited us this season. Edward Terry, Vesta Victoria and the Sheffield Choir have all been here, and scarcely have the melodious echoes of the Sheffield Choir died away when we hear the strains of "What Cheer! Knock 'em in the Old Kent Road," and Chevalier, England's greatest character artist and truest coster singer, is on the way. Chevalier was in Canada some years ago, but has never been farther west than Winnipeg.

Those who heard him during that trip will remember him as "The Future Mrs. Acklins," in the inimitable impersonation of the coster-monger; "A Fallen Star," a poor old tragedian, worn in mind and body, yet nursing the memories of forty years ago, when he was someone in the show; "Our Little Nipper," that most precocious of youngsters, and a lively little French song as they do it in the music halls of Paris. But the gem of his performance was the pathetic old man and good husband in "My Old Dutch."

They are a quaint lot of sentimentalists, these Chevalier folk. They have tears in their eyes and frogs in their throats, but it is a delight to meet them. Each is a distinct type, each a perfect study. And with all their sorrows each in his way is an optimist. An hour with Chevalier is a release of the soul, and we go home the happier and the better for having met the Chevalier people, and laughed and sorrowed with them. Chevalier will be at the Victoria theatre on Thursday and Saturday evenings, June 22 and 24.

Indifference appears to be the attitude of French working people towards the old-age pensions scheme. Appeals by the Paris and provincial authorities for the necessary details have met with little response. In Lyons, where about 40,000 persons are needed, only 4,000 or 5,000 applications have been made, and similar reports come from other industrial centres.

BARNARD'S MANIKINS
Coming to the Grand on Monday for a Week

New Grand Theatre.

An act, the like of which has never been staged in Victoria at any theatre, and as complete in every detail as modern invention and electrical apparatus can make it, will be staged at the Grand on Monday, when Europe's greatest aggregation of lifelike mechanical actors, Barnard's Manikins, will appear, presented in "The Con's Revelry." This act has been a European wonder-worker, so complete is it in mechanical completeness. There it has been in the French style, but here has been Americanized by a complete change of manikin clothing. There are young coons and barnyard inhabitants, many accessories, and all an imitable representation that will please all, amuse all, and especially afford delight to the children. It will be a children's week without a doubt, and having this in mind the manager has selected the balance of the bill so that no offence could be given the child mind.

One of the acts that will please mightily is Ye Colonial Duo, a pair of performers who will in song and speech and story present a delightfully attractive gathering of events in a large colonial garden. To do this they have to set the stage specially and bring new scenery.

Another dancing turn is billed, the duo this week being those eminent performers, Bliss and Hesse, noted most for the dashing manner of their work and its general effectiveness.

The bill does not get by without a play in one act, and like many of those that have succeeded here the last few weeks, "Fresh From College" will appeal to the many for its comedy. It is by Paul Case, and the author is taking the principal part in it himself, appearing as a man of many parts, successful in all.

They are all coming to vaudeville for

"I would further recommend that all the land owners on Sooke lake, other than the E. & N. Railway Company, be notified that they vacate their property on or before the 31st of December next, and that no improvements made after such date as the water commissioner and city solicitor shall determine, be paid for by the city."

Some of the things which Mr. Meredith might be expected to do in the event of his being appointed to supervise the work were set forth in the letter addressed to the council from Sanderson & Porter, of which firm he is a member. The letter stated that Mr. Meredith would act as consulting engineer, that the company would maintain at its own expense a competent engineer on the grounds during the progress of the work, that they would make all the necessary surveys and all the plans and draw the specifications for the construction work, compare and analyze all tenders and report on same to the council, submit monthly progress reports, and as soon as the surveys are made prepare a report on the general plan and scope of the work, with estimates of cost.

The project, according to their understanding, is to provide for the daily supply of 12,000,000 gallons of water by gravity flow from Sooke Lake to Victoria, the provision of sufficient storage at Sooke Lake, the determining of the run off Leach River and Sooke Lake watershed, so that the excess over domestic requirements may be made of sufficient size to permit the future utilization of all the water available for power purposes.

Sanderson & Porter state their willingness to undertake the work specified above for the sum of $24,000, to be paid in monthly instalments of $1,000, to commence with the starting of the work. The company estimates that the work will extend over a period of thirty-six months. In the event of it taking longer no extra payment need be given, and of course in the event of it being completed in a shorter time the monthly payments of $1,000 will cease and save the city a lump of money. The company also expressed its willingness to engage and supervise the survey work at an extra cost of five per cent upon the outlay incurred in that department.

Wynn Meredith, who will now be recognized as the prospective supervising engineer for the work, was present at the council meeting, and after being introduced to the aldermen was invited to speak by the mayor.

Taking advantage of this opportunity Mr. Meredith briefly outlined the project and made a hit with his far-reaching suggestions. He explained that there were two important elements to be considered when starting out upon such a work. The first was the obtaining of a domestic supply of water in sufficient quantities and of purest quality, and the second was the utilization of such power as can possibly be developed in the future. To his mind the conduits leading from the lake to the arm would have to be large enough for future power development as well as for the immediate water supply for domestic purposes. It was nothing less than a waste of money to undertake such a gigantic enterprise for a less supply of water than several times the present requirements. What they should do was to develop a sufficient horse power to permit of the installation of booster pumps so as to increase the supply readily and without extra work.

Mr. Meredith also stated his opinion to the council that the two-tunnel plan suggested by Mr. Topp was the best one under the circumstances. By adopting the two-tunnel system it would be possible to obtain the water from the upper end of the lake where it was deeper and purer. In his opinion there could not be the slightest doubt that the Sooke Lake watershed and the Leach River would supply all the water Victoria would need for a long time to come.

A comparison of cost, which of course cannot be accepted as final or accurate, was given by Water Commissioner Raymur. He estimated that the preparatory surveys would cost about $15,000, which, added to the $24,000 for the other work, would bring the total up to $39,000 with Mr. Meredith operating the contract. Mr. Meredith, however, pointed out that he did not wish the council to be misled in regard to the cost of surveys. The better these were done the cheaper they were done in the long run. He reminded the aldermen that the survey work on the Jordan River power station cost the B. C. Electric Company about $50,000.

Messrs. Hancock and Foster-Barham had tendered on four per cent of the total cost which worked out at about $58,000, presuming that the work would cost a million and a quarter.

The necessary by-law for the work will probably be placed before the people in September, or as soon as Mr. Meredith is in a position to give his estimate for the same.

FACE TRIAL FOR ALLEGED FRAUDS

Conspiracy Charged in Connection With Puget Sound Navy Yard Supplies

Seattle, Wash., June 3.—Elmer Goldberg, manager of the Seattle branch of the Great Western Smelting & Refining Company; W. A. Corder, manager of the W. A. Corder Machinery Supply Company; and Edwin F. Meyers, chief clerk in the general storekeeper's office at the Puget Sound navy yard, were arrested late yesterday, on indictments returned by the federal grand jury at Tacoma, charging them with conspiracy to defraud the government. Indictments have also been returned against E. Silverstone, a hotel proprietor, and J. A. Kettlowell, chief clerk in the navy yard office here.

Goldberg was released on his own recognizance until to-day, when he is to get $5,000 bail. Meyer was released on $5,000 bail and Corder was held in default of bail.

The alleged conspiracy has to do with the furnishing of metal supplies to the Puget Sound navy yard. It is charged in the indictment that about April 1, 1908, the Great Western Smelting & Refining Company had on hand a large quantity of zinc, rolled sheet metal and boiler plate, and that Chief Clerk Meyer, of the navy yard storekeeper's office, decided that the government needed this material. It is charged by the government that the defendants conspired to manipulate the specifications so that only three firms could bid on the contract. These three firms were the Great Western Smelting & Refining Company, the W. A. Corder Company and the Fowler Metal Company, of San Francisco. The government alleges that the last named company was non-existent and that the same was invented by Silverstone for the purpose of defrauding the government. The contract for the material was awarded to the Fowler Metal Company for $1,417, an exorbitant price, it is charged. The Fowler company assigned the contract to the Great Western Smelting & Refining Company, and the government charges that all the defendants profited by the alleged conspiracy.

Silverstone has also been indicted for forgery, the government alleging that in assigning the cheque made in favor of the Fowler company to the Great Western Smelting & Refining Company, he forged the name of "E. O. Fowler." Meyer and Kettlowell, the navy clerks, have also been indicted on a charge of conspiracy in connection with the alleged manipulation of bids for tallow and similar supplies.

FAMINE IN CHINA

The secretary of the Anglican Synod has received the following letter from the Bishop of Honan, China:

Kaifeng, May 3, 1911.

My Dear Sir:—It gave me great pleasure to receive your letter of March 25th with the draft of $510 Mexican for the famine work. Thank you very much indeed. I wish all the Dioceses at home (Canada) would respond as liberally as the Diocese of Columbia.

I am sending you herewith a copy of the last appeal I have drawn up with regard to the famine, which I am sending to the Times and the Home papers. It will give you some idea of what our Canadian Mission is trying to do, and we have to carry the whole of the responsibility for the Central China Famine Relief Committee as it is yet unable to help in this province, and is confining its work to Anhui and Kiangsu.

Yours sincerely,
"Wm. C. White," Bishop.

The following is the appeal referred to in above letter: Famine Relief in Honan, China. I have just returned from the famine region in the East of the province. Now that the weather has broken the people are beginning to travel back to their homes, and where through the winter the refugees had their faces turned from the famine districts they are now travelling back by hundreds, only to find, most of them, that their land is again under water through the recent prolonged rain. Many a tragic tale had these people to tell of parties dwindled by starvation to one-half and even one-third the original number. Most of them were still living on roots and bark, and blades of new wheat and 'kue' (a kind of straw) and the mortality must be even greater than in the winter, for we occasionally saw bodies in the fields, usually being eaten by dogs, and heard gruesome tales of survivors eating dead bodies of their comrades.

A great deal of seed grain is being taken east, but all under armed escort, and we daily heard stories of grain being looted. Kweichow being the prefectural city of the affected district, it was natural that the refugees should flock there, and some 6,000 of these destitute people are in Kweichow City. This has brought the cost of living up very high, so that the poorest people of Kweichow are now in as destitute circumstances as the refugees and are leaving their homes to beg.

In Kweichow the officials are doing practically nothing and the district magistrate has just been dismissed from office; some say on account of his incompetence in dealing with the famine problem. The Prefect, though he talks most plausibly, has so far shown not much energy in the matter and keeps pretty well to his Yamen, apparently wishing to be oblivious of what is taking place around him. He attempted to go to Yungcheng with money for distribution, but the flooded fields and the starving multitude were too much for him and he turned back home.

The gentry in Kweichow had collected a little money for relief, which they attempted to give, but lacking organization and method, the multitude simply stormed the relief centre, so that after a second day this plan was abandoned. With the money in hand they then adopted another plan of buying grain and selling it cheaply. He went to the temple where this was being done, but though the gentry were there, and the grain was there, there was not a purchaser in sight, and no wonder, for the prices were only 10 per cent cheaper than the market prices holding in the shops, while 20 per cent cheaper would be no help to the thousands who had not the cash wherewith to buy. Yet outside the courtyard of this temple was filled with starving people crying and moaning for bread, some unable to stand for weakness, and deaths occurring at the doors of this temple granary. Coming away from the temple one of our party counted five dead bodies in one place, hardly a stone's throw away.

Naturally such a state of affairs could not be approved of by the best and most practically minded of the gentry, and there were some who would have nothing to do with the selling of the grain, and were in favor of something more immediately effectual for the saving of life. Unfortunately, they had already given their contribution to the general fund and were unable to do anything more by themselves. We had different conferences with these men and finally I agreed to be responsible for the furnishing of cooked food daily to 3,000 women and children, provided they supplied the building and gave the necessary oversight. This they were only too willing to do, and will also give what contribution they can for this purpose. By now this work is under way and will be kept up until the middle of June, I expect, when the wheat harvest ought to relieve the situation somewhat in Kweichow. If sufficient funds should meanwhile come in we shall extend relief to the 5,000 or more, but for the present, are confining ourselves to food for the women and children. Besides this we have started an orphanage for boys in one of the City temples put at our disposal for the purpose, and another for girls in our mission premises. These children are coming in at the rate of six or more a day, and before long we shall, I expect, have a couple of hundred. One of the saddest things connected with the famine, is the fact that men and women from Kaifeng and other places are taking advantage of the distress to buy girls for slaves and for worse purposes. On the road we passed carts and barrows full of these girls, being brought from Kweichow, and one night five of these little girls stayed in the same inn as we did. The result of this is that all the girls brought to our orphanage are under five years of age. Scores of people have brought their daughters to us and offered them for a string or more of cash, but as we cannot buy them, this being nominally illegal, they turn to the ready market of these traffickers in girls. In their physical distress they seem destitute of all feeling of kinship and sell their own offspring for a little cash to satisfy their hunger.

But Kweichow is practically only on the fringe of the famine district, the famine centre of Honan being the districts of Yungcheng and Siayl. The Chinese say that one-fifth of the population of Yungcheng have succumbed to the famine. If this is so and the census of this district taken last January is correct (approximately), it means that the appalling number over 200,000 have died of starvation. The wheat harvest in the vicinity of Kweichow City this summer will be quite up to the average, but there will be no harvest in the greater part of the above two districts. Fully two-thirds of these districts were flooded last autumn, and the exceptionally heavy spring rains have again covered the land with water, which has not yet receded, so that no prospect of a crop of any kind is yet to be seen. Famine relief for these districts will be required for some months to come. At present there is no seed available and no animals for ploughing, the latter having died of starvation.

We have just purchased in Kaifeng 48 car loads of grain for Yungcheng, which has been forwarded under escort, kindly provided by the governor, and this should reach Yungcheng in a couple of days time, where it will be distributed systematically by my own men. Further relief for Yungcheng will depend on the amount of contribution received by this mission. The Central China Famine Relief Committee being unable to extend help to the Honan Province, the only relief work being done outside of the spasmodic efforts of the Chinese themselves in that of the Church of England Mission.

Further contributions will be gratefully received by Miss Caroline Macklem, 1126, Richardson street, or at the office of this paper.

Miss Macklem acknowledges with thanks the following contributions to the China Famine Fund: Per Bank of British North America, Dunsmuir Branch, $5.00. Anonymous, $1.00. Per Bishop Perrin, $1.00. A Welshman, $1.00.

Colonel Seeley, under-secretary for war, ascended at Henden recently in Graham White's aeroplane, and derived much pleasure from a flight of a mile in a frisky wind. He is the first member of the government to make an ascent.

The Gillespie shield is presented by the Gillespie family for junior cricket competition among the lads of Victoria. This shield is made of heavy quartered oak, carved by the skillful hands of George S. Gibson, stained dark on the early English shade, with twenty spaces for silver plates, having the purpose, date and donor's name carved in incised letters.

Each year the winning team may place an appropriately inscribed silver plate in one of the spaces and hang the emblem of their supremacy in their trophy hall until won by another successful competitor.

The Gillespie family, so well known in the world of sport, and in Victoria particularly, for their keenness of perception and largeness of heart, know that others dimly realize that a good start is half the game. What a comfort for parents to feel their boys are in good company, enjoying healthy recreation, surrounded by the best of influences and protected by the supervision of sterling manhood. Some have objected to the game on account of expense, but do they then that the club supplies the necessary implements? Give a boy a pair of duck trousers and in this country—rubber-soled canvas shoes, known as sneakers, pay his three dollar subscription to the club, and you make him happy for the summer. That is, if no blackball appears when his name comes up for election.

It is rejuvenating to see the little chaps in their cricket togs going out for their afternoon practice on Saturday games and returning home bubbling over with the joy of youthful exuberance, being the better sons for having inhaled a mentally and physically pure atmosphere.

Summer Sunday School.—Commencing to-morrow the Sunday school will meet immediately following the morning service. This arrangement is made for the summer months only. A class for married ladies will be inaugurated to be taught by the pastor, Rev. J. B. Warnicker. The Philathea and Baracac cordially invite young ladies and young men to meet in their respective classes.

Mission Circle.—The Women's Mission Circle will hold their monthly meeting on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of Mrs. E. W. Andrews, 724 Pine street, Victoria West. The topic for the meeting will be "The Gospel in Bolivia," Mrs. J. B. Warnicker will be the leader.

Philathea Class.—On Wednesday, June 14, the young ladies of the Philathea class will hold a "measuring party" in aid of the class furnishing fund. Committees are actively engaged preparing for the occasion, and the class colors will largely predominate in the decorations. A unique programme will be provided, of which further particulars will be forthcoming in subsequent issues.

Baracac Class.—The members of the men's Baracac class are entering upon an active membership campaign now that it has been decided to meet at 12.15 o'clock instead of 2.30. A growing interest is manifest, and the different committees are taking hold of the work assigned them. The hospital committee is visiting the sick each week and carrying flowers, reading matter, etc., in the hope of cheering and encouraging those who are deprived for the time of health and strength. The class will be pleased to welcome all young men who may not have a church home, or who are strangers in our city.

All men are cordially invited.

JUST ONE CURE FOR ANAEMIA

It is Through the Rich, Red Blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Actually Make

There is just one cure for anaemia—much rich, red blood. Anaemia is simply a bloodless, run-down condition. Then the body becomes weak from overwork, worry or illness, an examination of the blood will show it to be weak and watery. The common symptoms are paleness of lips, gums and cheeks, shortness of breath and palpitation of the heart after the slightest exertion, dull eyes and a loss of appetite. Anaemia itself is a dangerous trouble and may pass into consumption. It can only be cured by making the blood rich and red, thereby enabling it to carry the necessary nourishment to every part of the body.

It is a proved fact that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured thousands and thousands of cases of anaemia. They are really intended to make new, rich blood and are compounded in the most scientific manner with the finest ingredients for the blood known to medical science. These Pills are not a cure-all. They are intended to cure only those diseases that have their origin in poor, watery blood, and starved, weakened nerves, and the record of their success in doing this is their constantly increasing popularity in every part of the world.

Mrs. R. Colton, Golden, B. C., says: "As a matter of duty I wish to say a word in praise of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for what they have done for my daughters, one 16 and the other 18 years of age. Both were pale and bloodless and suffered from many of the symptoms of anaemia. They would tire easily, suffered from frequent headaches, were easily discouraged and often fretful. I saw in our home paper the story of a young girl who had similarly suffered and was cured through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I bought three boxes of the Pills and my daughters started to take them. Before they were done they began to feel better and look better, and I got a half dozen more boxes, and by the time these were used, they were enjoying the best of health, with rosy cheeks and not like the same girls at all. I also gave the Pills to my little boy who had rheumatism, and they completely cured him."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Each of King George's sons will receive $25,000 a year from the civil list on attaining his majority, and each daughter $20,000 a year at her majority or marriage.

WHICH SHALL IT BE, UNION OR FEDERATION?

Judge Forin Writes in The Presbyterian on Union of the Churches

The following most interesting article appeared in the Presbyterian of recent date, and as it deals with a question which is, in a very practical manner, before the churches to-day we reproduce it here. Judge Forin, of Nelson, is well known throughout British Columbia and his opinion on the great question of church union will be read with interest. He writes as follows:—

Adopting one of the opening phrases of my brother Swanson's article in your issue of April 27, "as a layman and as a commissioner to the next General Assembly I wish briefly to express my views," as I much regret that absence in Europe will prevent my being present at the assembly.

I have followed with the keenest interest the letters, editorials and general articles dealing with the subject of union and carefully perused the reports of the joint committee on union, with an open mind, sometimes wavering this way or that, and have finally concluded that the union of the three churches would be a splendid achievement in forwarding God's Kingdom in Canada.

Full publicity and discussion is desirable and necessary as we must assume that we are all seeking the way which Christ would have us go.

I took occasion to visit the general conference of the Methodist Church at Victoria, and carefully and critically watched the proceedings; any remnant of doubt as to the desirability of a speedy union with this great sister church was completely dissipated as I heard and saw the splendid type of men comprising the conference and the power, enthusiasm and ability with which they despatched their business.

We all know the history of our Church. We all glory in its historic greatness but many of us see vastly greater things to be accomplished by concentration of church forces.

If Archbishop Cranmer's scheme for church union in the middle of the 16th century had been successful the proposed Protestant Council consisting of delegates from all the Protestant churches of Europe would probably have brought about uniformity in church government and services, if not in doctrine, in which case the Scottish branch of the Reformed Church having a Presbyterian form of church government would never have been formed or developed, in its present form at least, and we would have had a different church history; but that council never convened and each of the branches of the Reformed Church went its own way.

World for Christ," to make a fetish out of a denominational banner.

All honor to the blue banner of Presbyterianism with all its historical and hallowed associations, as the old regimental standard in a noble warfare with many great victories to its credit; but new conditions demand new formations as all history teaches us otherwise you have inertia and deadness.

I take issue with Judge Swanson as follows:—

1. The spirit of those who fought for the faith as represented by Presbyterianism was always for Christian union, the reason for our being as a denomination was the refusal of other bodies of the Reformed Church to approach common ground.

The Methodist and Congregational Churches in Canada are willing to do this as they have evolved a Presbyterian form of church government within their own organizations.

2. The procedure of the General Assembly is the proper and only procedure that can lead to union.

It is thoughtless to charge the leaders of this movement with ignoring the proper place for Parliamentary authority. The negotiating churches are placing themselves in a position to go to the legislature with a request for the necessary legislation to confirm in the united church all property, etc.

3. There is a tenfold deeper inspirational and dynamic power in disciples of Christ working together for the salvation of the souls of those about us, in righting present wrongs in heretics about theological battles of by-gone generations many of which could have been avoided by the exercise of Christian charity.

4. As one who has been in British Columbia for a longer period than Judge Swanson and also in close touch with our Church work, I am prepared to say that the expense of overlapping has been great and an imposition on the generosity of those who in the east have done so much to supply the funds to keep up our denominational end.

5. I am convinced if Dr. Robertson were here to lead up that he would be the greatest champion of the union movement; it stands for the more effective spread of the appointed means of grace, and the doctor stood four square for this and could have done his work in the sister churches just as heartily as in ours.

6. Finally my advice is to press on the good work for Organic Union and if the majority, as expressed by the vote of the Presbyteries, is a correct expression of the Church no Parliamentarians will refuse to confirm the union by statute. What will become of the "Remnant" that is bent upon being left? It is difficult to foretell, but the people will follow the fathers and brethren.

AN INVALUABLE MEDICINE

Mrs. W. Arnold, Edmonton, Alta., writes: "Kindly send me a box of Baby's Own Tablets. They have been invaluable to me and I really do not know how I ever would have got along without them. Baby was poorly; his digestion was bad and he was constipated. I gave him the Tablets and they made a fine healthy boy of him. Now, whenever he is cross or troubled with constipation, I always give him the Tablets and they relieve him right away. I tried a lot of other medicine but nothing seemed to agree with him till I got the Tablets. I would not be without them." The testimony of Mrs. Arnold is that of thousands of other mothers. Everyone who ever uses Baby's Own Tablets have words of praise for them. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers, or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

DUST NUISANCE IRRITATES PEOPLE

View Street Gets the Worst of It From the Section Under Construction

Many complaints were hurled at the head of the civic authorities Thursday and yesterday in connection with the dust nuisance caused by the high whirling wind which prevailed throughout the day, especially in the afternoon. The wind itself was strong and eccentric enough in its movements to be other than pleasurable, but when it combined forces with the unaided dust on the macadam roads and other places where the sun had disintegrated the earth into minute specks with aerial predilections it became positively objectionable. It is an open question if any amount of watering would have averted the nuisance; it might have alleviated it had it been possible to concentrate effort upon the worst places. There are at the present time five watering carts in the city's employ and these were out all day working overtime along with the electrical sprinkler of the B. C. Electric Railway Company.

One place in particular which seemed to get more than its due share of the wind and dust was the section of View street lying between Broad and Douglas streets. The wind lifted all the germs from the section extending to Government street and wafted them with tortuous precision into the open doors of the Spencer store, causing endless inconvenience to the sellers and purchasers alike. Intimation of the nuisance was communicated to the city hall but unfortunately by that time all the carts had already been assigned to their various districts, and it was therefore impossible to have the nuisance attended to until the evening.

Perhaps it ought to be stated for the consolation of those who suffered that the city has under consideration the desirability of obtaining an electric flushing cart, which type is of the greatest utility on asphalted streets, so that when the paving contract is completed the dust nuisance in the city will be no more than a nightmare of the past.

LOCAL IMPROVEMENTS.

Vancouver June 2.—In view of the vast amount of work which the City Engineering Department now has in hand, and the heavy expense of borrowing money for local improvements beyond what are provided for in the money by-laws, it was decided by the Board of works that the city engineer should make no recommendations for local improvements during the present year, except such as are extremely urgent, and that all the energies of the department should be concentrated in rapid progress on the work now under way.

The discussion which led to this decision was brought up by a recommendation of the City Engineer for a macadam pavement on Broadway, from Granville Street to Trafalgar Road, at a total cost of $35,350, of which the city will bear $23,352. At first, several of the aldermen were not inclined to favor this recommendation but upon the showing of Alderman Cameron that it was urgently needed, and that his ward had not been overgenerously treated in such matters in comparison with other wards, it was allowed to go through, with the understanding mentioned.

PRINCIPAL RESIGNS.

New Westminster, June 2.—A communication has been received by the secretary of the school board from H. M. Stramberg, principal of the city high school, which is equivalent to a resignation. Mr. Stramberg states that he does not expect to return from England in time for the fall school opening, and requests that the board make arrangements independent of him.

SAYS STEEL TRUST AVERTED PANIC

E. H. Gary Tells Why Corporation Purchased Tennessee Coal and Iron Company

Washington, D. C., June 3.—Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation directorate, told the Stanley steel trust investigating committee yesterday that his corporation stood behind J. P. Morgan in averting a disastrous financial upheaval in 1907. He insisted, challenging the statements of John W. Gates before the committee, that the purchase by the steel corporation of the Tennessee Coal and Iron company at that time was made at a price more than it was worth for the express purpose of preventing the crash of the New York banking firm of Moore and Schley.

Mr. Gary related a dramatic story of the momentous events which preceded the absorption of the Tennessee concern. He described in detail how he and Henry C. Frick, at the instance of Mr. Morgan, had revealed the plan of buying the company at a price greater than its value to President Roosevelt and Mr. Root, then secretary of state. He told how he had concluded before their interview with Mr. Roosevelt that any government prosecution on the fact would have been an "outrage."

Mr. Gary made many surprising statements during his eight hours examination, but none more startling than his declaration that government control and publicity of corporations in this country must come. He said that through the American Iron and Steel Institute, the heads of the steel industry were trying to steer a course between the Sherman anti-trust law, which he characterized as "archaic," on the one hand, and the old time method of destructive competition on the other in order to operate for the public welfare.

Mr. Gary announced to the committee that he wanted everything known concerning the steel corporation, and more than all pleaded for some responsible government source to which such a necessarily great corporation could appeal for guidance in the conduct of its business. He agreed to furnish the committee so much that it wished to know, that he will be recalled when it meets again on Wednesday. Others who have been summoned to appear are W. S. Dickson, of the steel corporation, and John Lambert, of the Republic Iron and Steel company.

shovel on the Kettle Valley construction line met death when the bank on which the steam shovel was working caved in and a slide took place. Just the day before he had warned a workman who was new on the job to beware of the slides.

He was soon extricated from the slide and when he was pulled out, the only mark on him was a bruise on the jaw. Life, however, was extinct and it is thought that the blow on the jaw knocked him senseless and that he was then smothered to death under the dirt. The verdict of the coroner's jury was added recommending that in future all cuts made by steam shovels be made at a smaller angle to guard against the possibility of a repetition of this tragedy.

WHISKEY HOLDS ITS VICTIMS Until Released by Wonderful Samaria Prescription.

Liquor sets up inflammation and irritation of the stomach and weakens the nerves. The steady or periodical (snee) drinker is often forced to drink even against his will by his unnatural physical condition. Samaria Prescription stops the craving, steadies the nerves, builds up the general health and makes drink actually distasteful and nauseous. It is tasteless and odorless, and can be given with or without the knowledge of the patient.

Thousands of Canadian homes have been saved from misery and disgrace by some devoted wife, mother or daughter through this wonderful Canadian remedy. The money formerly wasted in drink has restored happiness, home comforts, education and respect to the families formerly in want and despair.

Read the following, one of the numerous unsolicited testimonials received:

"I can never repay you for your remedy. It is worth more than life to me. My husband has been offered liquor several times, but would not touch it. He said it had no charm for him now. May God's choice blessings ever rest on you, and yours, are my prayers ever. No one knows it but those who have tried it. As soon as I can I will see others that I know would give anything to stop their husbands from drink. I will give them your address."

"Mrs. K. Dewinton, Alta." (Name withheld on request.) Now, if you know of any family needing this remedy, tell them about it. If you have any friend or relative who has formed or is forming the drink habit, help him to release himself from its awful clutches. Samaria Prescription is used by Physicians and hospitals.

A FREE TRIAL PACKAGE of Samaria Prescription, with booklet, giving full particulars, testimonials, price, etc., will be sent absolutely free and postpaid in plain sealed package to anyone asking for it and mentioning this paper. LONDON'S NEW RESERVOIR.

London will shortly come into the possession of another reservoir holding a thousand million gallons of water, and covering 120 acres.

This new artificial lake, which will be opened in the summer, is situated in Surrey, about twelve miles from the city. It will be one of the largest reservoirs constructed in Europe, and has taken nearly three years to complete.

The actual work of building the reservoir has cost about $760,000, the engines, pumps and turbines about $260,000. The connecting river between the Thames and the pumping station, which is a quarter of a mile long, twenty-two feet wide, and eight feet deep, cost, with the pumping station just about $350,000.

CONSPIRACY TO KILL MADERO AT JUAREZ

Insurrecto Police Says Plot Was to Have Been Carried Out During Ball

El Paso, June 3.—Soon after the departure of Francisco I. Madero, Jr., for Mexico City yesterday, details were made known of an alleged attempt to dynamite him. The plot, according to the insurrecto police, was to have been carried out during the ball which Senor Madero attended in Juarez last night.

Cruzrey, former jefe politico of Guadalupe, opposite Fabens, Texas, whom Madero deposed, has been locked up in Juarez and placed in communication, and insurrecto secret service men have been detailed to make other arrests.

When the plot was discovered, enough dynamite was being carried to the ballroom to blow up the entire building. About 500 persons, including Senor Madero and his wife, were the principals and spectators of a grand march, when about 11 o'clock a man was stopped at the entrance. Out of the man's pocket was pulled a large tin can, which was filled with dynamite and provided with a time fuse. The insurrecto police assert that had the dynamite exploded, few in the ballroom would have escaped injury.

Opinion is expressed by the Juarez authorities that the presence of the dynamite at the ballroom is only part of an elaborate conspiracy, formed in Mexico City and other places, by a political party opposed to Madero, and that further developments are expected.

The departure of Senor Madero left Juarez in charge of General Jose De La Luz Blanco and 1,500 insurrectos.

FOCUSING FIELD GLASSES.

Most users of opera or field glasses suppose it a matter of indifference whether the tubes are collapsed or extended when places to the eyes for adjustment. According to The Optician, however, the tubes should always be extended in the first place, then slowly racked in until the moment clear vision is obtained, which, for a normal-sighted person, is the moment when the emergent light takes the form of parallel pencils. When the tubes are racked out instead of in, the adjustment is liable to be stopped at a point where clear vision is produced by divergent pencils of light falling on the eye. This means that while the muscles of direction of the eyes are adapted for distant vision, the internal muscles of accommodation are adapting themselves for near vision. Although done quite unconsciously, the misuse of the eyes in this way for any considerable period brings on symptoms of ocular strain and theatre headache.

FOR STINGLESS BEES.

To produce a bee that will not sting and that at the same time will be twice or three times as industrious as the bee to-day, is one of the most important problems to be met by the new bee-keeping bureau of the Massachusetts Agricultural College at Amherst. Professor Burton N. Gates, state inspector of apiaries, is in charge of this work.

"We find on the island of Cyprus an exceptionally irritable and vicious bee," said Professor Gates. "In the Russian Caucasus there is a bee that is very gentle. As to the possibility of finding the ideal in the Russian bee I cannot say, because its comparative productiveness has not been determined. Still, I think some day we will breed bees that will be great honey or wax producers and at the same time be gentle and stingless."

GREATEST BLOT ON THE RECORD OF DIAZ

Yielded to Peonage System Under Pressure of Foreign Capital

Nothing the future has in store for President Diaz can rob him of his right to be considered the great developer of Mexico. He found the country in a barbarous state; he leaves it a modern nation, and its presidents for a thousand years to come must build on the deep foundations he has laid. Diaz's greatest service to Mexico was the bringing in of foreign capital to fertilize the land; and the greatest blot on his memory, the peonage system, is due to the demands of this foreign capital to earn handsome dividends on the money invested. Had Diaz been a greater man he would have yielded to these demands when they were just, and would have refused to yield to them when they affected the liberty of hapless Mexican laborers, who were converted into veritable slaves by the exorbitant requirements of foreign concessionaries.

Portillo Diaz believed that "peace bath her victories not less renowned than war," and he believed also that peace must have her sacrificial victims. No doubt he could earnestly argue that true patriotism in Mexico demanded the lives of tens of thousands of Mexican people every year, and that for them to perish on the great tobacco and henequen plantations was as necessary to the commercial prosperity of the nation as was the death of soldiers on the field of battle. President Diaz's great courtesy and kindness to English-speaking and other foreigners saved him from the pen of the muckraker until the last year or so. Adventuring authors who penetrated Mexico, have been deftly steered round in a circle of civility from one aspect of the benevolent despot to another. Their eyes have been fixed on Mexico's wonderful material development, and they have been blind to the underlying horror of slavery, upon which so much of it rests.

Not so John Kenneth Turner, as the title of his recently issued book, "Barbarous Mexico," suggests. Mr. Turner went to Mexico on a muck-raking expedition, representing himself as a capitalist desirous of investing money. He was thus enabled to approach government officials in a way impossible for an avowed journalist, and to gather material for a powerful indictment of the peonage system. The first victims of the demand for dividends were the Yaqui and Maya Indians, who had the ill-luck to live near the rich henequen plantations of Yucatan, and the tobacco plantations of Oaxaca. These

Was Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lindsay, Ont.—"I think it is no more than right for me to thank Mrs. Pinkham for what her kind advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. When I wrote to her some time ago I was a very sick woman, suffering from female troubles. I had inflammation of the female organs, and could not stand or walk any distance. At last I was confined to my bed, and the doctor said I would never get up. But this I refused to do. A friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now, after using three bottles of it, I feel like a new woman. I most heartily recommend this medicine to all women who suffer with female troubles. I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills and think they are fine."—Mrs. Frank Emmsley, Lindsay, Ontario.

We cannot understand why women will take chances with an operation or drag out a sickly half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, without first trying Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration.

tobacco plantations of Oaxaca. These Indians had no particular desire to earn a living as laborers, much preferring to support themselves in their own primitive fashion by hunting but as their labor was desired by the plantation owners the Indians were forced into rebellion. They were declared outlaws, their lands were forfeited, and as many of them as were not killed were sentenced to labor on the plantations.

But the supply of Indians was not great enough to meet the demand for cheap labor, because in some districts, notably the Valley Nacional in Oaxaca, which is popularly called Death Valley, the mortality is greater, probably, than in any other area of equal size on the face of the earth. Mr. Turner declares that 95 per cent. of the laborers perish within a year, and since 15,000 are recruited every twelve months, the drain on the labor market may be imagined. It is far too great to be supplied by the Indian population, and so the concessionaries were obliged to turn to the Mexicans themselves. They found a few thousand laborers among the criminals lodged in jails throughout the country, but their numbers were a mere drop in the bucket. The great bulk of the laborers, Mr. Turner says, are Mexicans, whose only crimes are poverty and friendliness. Many of them are lured away by no other medium than an extravagantly worded newspaper advertisement, promising high wages to laborers. A man applies for a job to an agent of one of the concessionaries in the City of Mexico or some other large centre of population. He is given $5 of advance money, and becomes instantly indebted to the corporation. Until he can refund the money he is virtually a slave, and the whole armed force of the state can be turned against him if necessary.

He is carted off to a plantation and set to work; he is obliged to buy all his supplies from his employer, such exorbitant prices that he is never out of debt, and remains a prisoner until death cancels the bond. Those who are not entrapped through a newspaper are secured through the connivance of local justices of the peace, who are paid so much a head for every laborer they can supply. A man is arrested on a nominal charge of vagrancy, and is spirited away to the plantations without trial or any other formality. If for no other reason than the peonage system the revolt against Diaz would seem to have been justified.

APPLICATION FOR BAIL

Los Angeles, Cal., June 3.—Application for bail in the case of Bert Connors, A. B. Maple and P. Ira Bender, the union men indicted on the charge of having attempted to destroy the county hall of records with dynamite last September, will be made as soon as Attorney Job Harriman arrives from San Francisco. This action will be taken regardless of the date of arraignment, which, according to officials of the district attorney's office, will not be set for a week.

Labor leaders in charge of the arrangements for the defence of the McNamara and of Connors and his alleged associates, declare that sureties for $5,000, the aggregate amount of bail demanded for Connors, Bender and Maple, have been obtained.

ALASKAN TIMBER

Seattle, Wash., June 2.—W. J. Lewis, special agent of the land office, arrived here to-day on his way to Alaska to dispose of pending cases in Alaska involving cutting and removal of timber from the public lands. The government wishes to pursue a liberal policy toward cannery and other companies which require timber for piling and packing cases.

The spruce and hemlock woods of the coast of Alaska, being immune from fire owing to the wet moss of the forest floor, have become old and are almost at a standstill in growth, and it is the policy of the government to thin the trees.

AMBASSADOR'S TASK

AT WASHINGTON D.C.

British Diplomat in America Makes Influence Felt in Public Life

Washington is always a pleasant city for an Englishman to visit. He finds here a life, a society, and an atmosphere with a flavor and distinction that appeal to him at once. Nowhere else on the American Continent does he feel so much at home. Nowhere else is he made so delightfully conscious of spacious and permanent surroundings, of established ways of doing things, of large and vital interests, and of a social intercourse unregulated, or but slightly regulated, by the dictatorship of the dollar. And just now, thanks above all things to the presence in the British embassy of Mr. Bryce, into whose charge the preliminary negotiations of the Arbitration treaty come, the American capital is made peculiarly agreeable for Mr. Bryce's fellow-countrymen. The moment one begins to move with open eyes and ears among the people in Washington who really count, one is promptly made to realize that the British embassy never stood higher in authority and prestige than at this moment, and that the British ambassador never enjoyed a greater popularity and influence than he does to-day.

It is not an easy thing to be a successful British ambassador to the United States. Still, less, I should judge, is it easy to be the successful wife of a British ambassador to the United States. Times have changed since Sir Stratford Canning described the Washington embassy as very pleasant socially, but not requiring any great talents politically. During the past ten or twelve years the office of British representative at Washington has been in many ways one of the most exacting in the service. I know, indeed, of no post which makes so insistent a demand on the levelheadedness and adaptability of its occupants. I say occupants because in Washington, less than in any other capital, can the British ambassador's wife be dissociated from her husband's failure or success. The prestige of the British embassy will often depend more on her social flexibility than on his merits as a diplomatist. She has to accommodate herself to a social environment that is all the more difficult to gauge because of its similarity in general outline and its dissimilarity in detail to what she is used to at home or in the capitals of Europe. She has to school herself to accept persons and things as they come, without comment or surprise, and to bear in mind that what would be counted familiarity or impertinence in London may in Washington be merely a novel token of friendliness and interest.

Ever since the appearance of his "American Commonwealth" all thinking America has felt itself his debtor. It has been Mr. Bryce's singular fortune to be the founder of a whole school of American political inquiry, and all its professors still look to him as their master. And besides this, his learning, his historical and biographical writings, his uniform friendliness to America, his unrivalled knowledge of the country and its ways, his freedom from pedantry and "side," his large democratic instincts, and his tremendous and infectious vitality assured him in advance a unique welcome when he arrived in Washington, not as a private student and traveller, but as his country's representative.

It was a great opportunity, and it has been splendidly seized. Mr. Bryce has negotiated and signed through some six or seven important treaties. He has practically wiped the slate clean of every contentious issue. More than that, he has won the confidence of Canada and Newfoundland. He is the first British ambassador at Washington who has visited Ottawa during his term of office. He is the first who has secured for Canada a recognized status in the conduct of Anglo-American diplomacy. He is the first, in short, who has done something tangible towards subduing the Canadian mind of the notion that the British embassy in Washington exists to cultivate American good will at the expense of Canadian interests.

But above and beyond all this Mr. Bryce has broken all precedents by declining to confine himself to the embassy on Connecticut avenue and his summer residence in Massachusetts. For the past four years he has been to America all, and more than all, that Mr. Lowell and Mr. Hay and Mr. Choate were to England. He has participated freely in the public life of the nation. He has made himself an ambassador to the people as well as to their government. He has delivered lectures and addresses at meetings, congresses, and universities. He must, I should think, have visited nearly every state in the Union. The result is that for the first time the British ambassador is something more than a name to the American masses; that the British embassy is the centre of the best and most intellectual society in the American capital; and that the special relationship which exists between the two main branches of the English-speaking peoples has at least been embodied in a worthy and adequate representative. Sydney Brooks, in the London Daily Mail.

Chicago, June 3.—Walter Stevens, an alleged labor slinger, wanted by the Chicago police in connection with the murders of Vincent Altman and William (Dutchy) Gentlemen, labor leaders, was arrested at Black Oak, a hamlet near Gary, Ind. SANITATION OF CAMPS.

Rules Established by Dr. Davis, the New Inspector.

The provincial government has appointed a provincial sanitary inspector for construction, logging, mining and fishing camps throughout British Columbia. Dr. Davis, Nanaimo, has been given charge of the work. He has drawn up and submitted to Acting Premier Young a set of regulations outlining the scope of the new department. There are fifteen rules governing the sanitary arrangements of camps. These require that every employer of labor in any sort of camp that comes within the authority of the health act shall on establishing it lose no time in notifying the inspector. The owner or foreman of any such work will be held responsible for the enforcement of these regulations.

The rules provide for ventilation, for the temperature to be maintained in rooms, for the disposal of refuse matter, and for dining-rooms and kitchens to be separated from the other parts of the camp. Every camp must, in compliance with the rules, have laundry and bathing facilities. If the inspector considers the site of the camp unhealthy he may order a new site to be selected, or may have the camp removed to a site approved of him. The location of stables and closets or latrines, and the source of the water supply of any camp must be satisfactory to the inspector.

Copies of the draft may be obtained from the inspector, who has established his headquarters here. For the enforcement of the regulations the inspector may obtain the assistance of any provincial constable. The penalties provided in section 97 of the Health Act will apply to the violation of any of the rules.

The Past Chancellors of the Knights of Pythias will meet to-morrow morning at 10:30 o'clock.

The meeting of the coronation musical committee, called for to-day, has been postponed till early next week.

Two of the new passenger coaches being sent out from Montreal for use on the E. & N. line have arrived. The cars are thoroughly modern in equipment, and will easily accommodate 65 passengers.

G. H. Aylward, a prominent mining man of the upper country, has purchased the handsome residence of J. W. Morris, 635 Elliot street, James Bay. The property was sold at auction for about $25,000.

A fire that might have proved dangerous was started last night by a spark from a chimney at the store shed of the Robertson Iron Works. Two streams from the salt water hydrant soon quenched the blaze. Small loss occurred.

The International Order of Good Templars will hold an open meeting next Friday evening at 8:30 in the schoolroom of the Church of Our Lord, Humboldt street. Rev. T. W. Gladstone will preside, and the speaker for the evening will be Rev. Dr. Spencer and Capt. Hamilton. An excellent programme will be rendered.

Coronation badges are now on sale at all the principal hotels and business houses. To-day ladies of a committee organized by Mrs. McClure are selling them on the principal streets. The badges, which are very attractive in design and workmanship, are in the form of a silk ribbon, royal blue in color, inscribed with a stanza from Tennyson, in gold lettering.

To-day being the forty-sixth anniversary of the birth of His Majesty King George V., it is being imperially observed as a holiday. At Work Point barracks at noon to-day a royal salute of twenty-one guns was fired. The government offices, banks, commercial and business houses in the city are closed, and the holiday is being generally observed in its fullest sense.

ARION-ORPHEUS CLUBS IN UNISON

JOINT CONCERT BY TWO LEADING MUSICAL CLUBS

Tacoma and Victoria Singers
Combine and Compete in Realm of Music

Perhaps the most brilliant concert of its kind yet heard in Victoria was that given by the local Arion Club and the Tacoma Orpheus Club, assisted by Mrs. Lottie Ashby Othick, soprano, and Albany Ritchie, violinist, which wound up the 1910-11 musical season at the Victoria theatre last night.

The visiting vocalists, whose appearances in conjunction with the Arion Club have made them great favorites here, won fresh laurels by their splendid singing of several very exciting numbers unaccompanied. The Arion club, while they did not sing by themselves, showed increasing strength and finish in the joint choral pieces.

A large audience attended, almost every seat in the theatre being taken, and applause was an unstinted as it was well-deserved. At the same time a large proportion of the audience exhibited two outstanding faults generally, namely, a lack of appreciation of the music, which, in spite of frequent upbraidings in the columns of the daily papers, continue to annoy the punctual and moderate theatre-goer. In spite of the many criticisms which the habit of late-coming has evoked in the past there were many who did not reach the theatre last night until long after the programme opened. However, the first and second numbers, a considerable delay was occasioned by these victims of procrastination and it not until nearly an hour after the advertised time of commencement that the nuisance abated.

The programme as arranged was a long one but, in the face of this fact, a wholly unreasonable demand, for, it was not until nearly half-past ten that the concert closed. It is suggested that any music-lover could tire of such excellent entertainment as that provided last evening, but it is nevertheless a fact that the voracity of a number of auditors worked a considerable hardship not alone on the artists but on those whose homes are not in the near vicinity of the theatre. This does not show the love of artistry on the part of the audience, nor does it denote true artistry on the part of the performers to succumb to it.

Undoubtedly the feature of the concert was the flawless vocalism of Mrs. Othick, who possesses a voice of rare tonal loveliness, which was heard to great advantage in four numbers. Few sopranos who have been heard here in the past few years have so effectively rendered the beautiful "Aida" from Verdi's opera "Aida," in Italian, and that thrilling show piece "The Cry of Rachel," which evoked storms of prolonged applause. In these heavier pieces are exhibited great dramatic force, clearness of diction, excellent phrasing and that balance of artistic qualities which is called temperance; temperance, moreover, controlled by a great intelligence and finished art. In "The Year at the Spring," sung as an encore to the "Aida" selection, her wonderful expression of the sentiment embodied in this short poem of Browning's was little short of marvellous, while her second encore piece, "From the Depths of the Sky-Blue Waters," was equally pleasing. Victoria has heard many many sopranos, but none who have executed heavier and more difficult programmes but no soprano soloist who has yet appeared here could have charmed the ear more than did Mrs. Othick by her voice and art.

Albany Ritchie, violinist, proved an artist of great ability. He displayed an admirable technique in the more difficult of his pieces, notably in Chopin's "Nocturne" and Zaretsky's "Masovka," both of which were rendered with great beauty of tone and in full sympathy with the motifs. In the lighter selections Mr. Ritchie showed remarkable versatility, especially in the contrasting "Cradle Song" and "Gavotte" by Miesch. The rare beauty of the soothing lullaby was admirably set off by the sprightly dance which followed. His playing, rich in artistic and technical qualities, was the more pleasing for an utter absence of the spectacular and objectionable mannerisms with which so many professional players seek to impress their hearers. In the absence of Mrs. Albany Ritchie, who was unfortunately unable to come to Victoria, Miss Rose Karasek, the Orpheus club accompanist, assisted Mr. Ritchie at the piano.

The concert opened with a joint selection by the two clubs, (a) "On the Sea," by Dudley Buck, and (b) "Song of the Viking," by Chadwick, the former being given with great precision, coherency and expression. The second sea song is deficient in musical worth and was not nearly so effectively sung as the preceding song, a fact which can easily be attributed to its peculiarities of construction. "The King and the Bard," given by the Orpheus members, was infinitely superior, both tenors and basses showing remarkable balance, especially in the last verse, where the repetition of "War-cry sounds through the land" by the basses was full of fire and dash. It was in "Babylon's Woe," by Gounod, that the massed clubs showed their greatest power. The accompaniment of piano, bass viol, and organ assisted the singing materially, and under the conductorship of Mr. John W. Todd, of the Orpheus Club, the choir realized all of the deep religious feeling and defiant assertion of this song of the Jewish captives. In the climatic final verse the power of the singing was most marked and the audience thrilled to the fierce effect of the curse and prophecy. Of the other numbers given by the clubs in conjunction "Land-Sighting," a musical setting of an old Norwegian poem, by Edward Grieg, composer of the "Peer Gynt" and other famous incidental music, was most notable.

The Orpheus club in Krug's "Farewell Song" showed particularly fine restraint in the pianissimo passages. The tenors were given a splendid opportunity to display their clarity of tone and the absolute certainty of their attack. The basses, who were undoubtedly the strongest and most finished of the visiting singers, were at their best in the finely-written and amusing song by Genee, "The Spectre," in which the groaning and moaning of the "ghost" was made most convincing.

To E. Howard Russell, conductor of the Arion Club, and Dr. John W. Todd, the Orpheus club conductor, the congratulations of all who enjoyed the concert are due. Both clubs have greatly improved since they were last heard at the Victoria and a notable feature of their singing is increased power and a better balance between the tenors and basses. Their united efforts were the more remarkable when the lack of opportunity for combined rehearsals is taken into consideration, and the performance of so many exciting pieces in so successful a manner as that shown last evening reflects the highest possible praise on their conductors.

Miss Miles and Miss Rose Karasek, besides the soloists, rendered entire satisfaction as accompanists, and to the music of the Orpheus club, the evenness of many of the choral pieces must be attributed. Mr. Russell further distinguished himself by his accompaniments to Mrs. Othick's songs, as well as by his organ accompaniment to "Babylon's Woe."

A very tastefully prepared souvenir programme of the concert had been printed, the typographical work being done by the Acme Press.

GENERAL STRIKE OF TEAMSTERS IS ON

Culmination of Dissatisfaction Among Drivers That Started on Monday Morning

The teamsters' strike has developed, as expected, from a walk-out in a few barns to a general sympathetic cessation of work. It does not do so to-day, will probably by Monday tie-up every union stable in the city.

Although the actual and primary dissatisfaction began in the establishment of three transfer firms, Heaney's, Skilling's and the Victoria Truck and Dray Company's, and although many of the other employers are both willing to recognize the union and to grant its demands, the men claim that until every member of the union receives equal consideration from the employer no one will return to work.

The union says it is not making a stand against individuals but against the entire Team-Owners' Association, because of the permitting of three of its members to act in a way inconsistent with the agreement approved of by the association. About 500 men were out this morning. A mass meeting will be held to-night at Labor hall.

The row occurred early this morning at 136 McFarlane street. The police made a number of arrests and have refused bail to every one in the house. Donovan played with Regina last year.

STATE WITNESS GIVES EVIDENCE

Tells of Payment of Money to Former Chief of Seattle Police

Seattle, Wash., June 3.—Gideon Tupper, the state's principal witness against former Chief of Police Charles W. Wapenstein, on trial for accepting a bribe of $1,000 from Tupper and Clarence Gerald for permitting disorderly houses to operate in the vice district, testified yesterday to the payment of large sums of money to Wapenstein for vice privileges, and also testified that he paid the $1,000 for the alleged taking of which Wapenstein is being tried. Tupper also testified that Armin and Long, proprietors of disorderly houses, told him that Wapenstein collected tribute from them.

James Valentine, paying teller of a bank, the first witness yesterday, testified that from February to October of last year, Tupper used to come to the bank to get currency of large denominations. Several times the teller went out of the bank to get large bills. Tupper used to bring in small bills and exchange them for big ones, the witness said.

Tupper, who is 30 years old, testified that he came to Seattle from Minneapolis ten years ago and worked in various saloons as a bartender, finally buying a saloon for himself. He testified that soon after Gill was elected mayor, Gill introduced him to Wapenstein, who told him to go ahead and lease a crib house. This house was filled with women and opened on the night that Wapenstein became chief of police. Afterward Wapenstein told him to lease another house, and Tupper leased it from Ralph D. Nichols. Tupper testified that he paid Wapenstein $10 a month for each woman who lived in the two houses mentioned.

THE DECLARATION OF LONDON.

Washington, D. C., June 3.—"Less sensation and more valuable practically than a ratification of a general arbitration treaty," was the comment of leading publicists here yesterday on the action of the Imperial Conference in London favoring the ratification of the Declaration of London.

The resolution is expected to immediately vitiate the declaration and place the British foreign office in a position to overcome the opposition which has threatened the total failure of the effort to secure an international agreement upon the rules of prizes at sea.

A fruitful cause of international quarrels has been the subject of contraband, associated with the rights at sea of neutral shipping.

It is said here that by the British ratification, which carries with it full approval of the Hague convention, all misunderstanding on those points will be removed and the chance of third parties becoming involved in a war will be practically eliminated.

DR. WORKMAN'S LABEL SUIT.

Montreal, June 3.—The libel suit of Dr. Workman against the Wesleyan college, was completed yesterday afternoon and judgment was reserved. C. H. Stevenson addressed a crowded court on behalf of Dr. Workman. He said that from the evidence heard, there was no doubt whatever that Dr. Workman had been illegally dismissed and deprived of his means of livelihood and grossly defamed and libeled. The actions of those responsible for his dismissal were more worthy of the "Dark Ages" than of the twentieth century. This so-called Christian body had plotted to drive a brother Christian out of the college. His dismissal was quite irregular and to justify their actions his persecutors defamed Dr. Workman in regard to his teachings.

REBEL LEADER EXECUTED.

Camaguey, Sonora, June 3.—"Red" Lopez, who was ordered imprisoned by Francisco I. Madero, Jr., on the charge that he had "sold out" to American interests while in command of a section of the insurgent garrison at Agua Prieta, has been executed. Lopez was being conveyed from Agua Prieta to this place to begin the serving of an eight-year sentence, imposed after his conviction of treachery by a court martial.

BUILDING AT NELSON.

Nelson, June 3.—The building permits, the index to the building activity in Nelson, continue to soar upward, the figures for last month showing an increase over those for May, 1910, of 24 per cent. The total permits issued last month aggregated in value $18,945, compared with $6,965 for the same month last year. The total for the year to date is $37,735, while for the same period in 1910 it was $3,000.

THE POPE'S BIRTHDAY.

Rome, June 2.—Pope Pius X. reached his 76th birthday anniversary to-day. Owing to the fact that he has not fully recovered from his recent illness there was no celebration to-day. During the morning, however, many of the cardinals and Vatican officials and other Italian and foreign churchmen and laymen left their cards, and many addresses and letters of congratulation were received by His Holiness from all parts of the world.

WARM IN SOUTHWEST.

Kansas City, Mo., June 2.—Indications to-day point to another record-breaking hot day throughout the southwest, according to the report of the weather bureau.

STRIKE AT END.

Toronto, June 2.—The bridge and structural iron workers who went out on strike on May 27 for an advance of five cents per hour have thrown up the sponge and returned to work at the old rate of 35 cents.

The Wealth of Artisticness in Our Broughton Street Windows

THREE ROOMS

THIS is no "idle gossip," it is good store news. We have three large windows facing on Broughton street, which we have fixed up as a parlor, dining room and bedroom, and we want you to see them. This is the store to get full value for your money, and by looking at these three rooms of the finest quality furniture, you will see that what we say is true. Of course we have two large floors of quality furniture, and if you don't see just what you want in the windows, why, we have it on these floors. We want you to think before you buy—and then you'll buy. To be ahead and keep ahead is our aim. To lead in every line is our ambition. You will find to-day's needs at to-day's prices, and you'll find to-day's values are the best. This store has neither baits nor trash, but quality and variety. To have been first proves antiquity—to have become first proves merit. Our ads are not bubble ads, swelling to unusual dimensions; glittering with "bogus bargains," only to burst into nothingness—but facts. This is the store that makes a record.

The Parlor

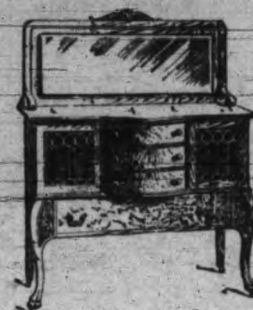

A Room In Mahogany

Here are the articles which appear in the parlor of our Broughton street windows—walk in and examine our goods.

PARLOR CABINET in mahogany with a large mirror at black and glass shelf and Green Plush on bottom with semi-round glass sides and glass doors; is the first article to catch the eye of those who love beautiful things for this room. There is a good space between the glass cabinet and a shelf below which will be found very useful. A reasonable space between the floor and this cabinet gives a very good appearance. Priced $50.00

THE JARDINIÈRE OR PEDESTAL in mahogany is handsome to a degree and at the price of $10.00 is certainly worth while looking at. If you should look at this piece of mahogany too long, with its high polish, it will lure you to buying at the price of $10.00

THREE-PIECE SUITE—The balance in this room is a three-piece suite in highly polished mahogany, upholstered in beautiful silk material in a dainty pattern of green, pink and blue. The suite consists of Settee, Arm Rocker and Arm Chair—all upholstered in the same material. Each piece is as inviting as the other and we leave it to your own good judgment to examine them and marvel at the small price for these three beautiful large pieces of furniture for $75.00

THE TABLE, also of Early English oak, highly polished, with 4 legs and three pieces of wood between at a distance apart giving a very handsome appearance and two bars, running all the way across. Size 36x36 square. Price $18.00

SETTEE, of solid quarter cut oak, Early English finish, with leather cushion which matches the Early English finish perfectly. This is a magnificent selected piece of wood and we doubt if you can find a duplicate of this settee at the price of $40.00

THE CARD TABLE, solid quarter cut oak, Early English finish, has 5 legs, and one which folds to one side which enables the table to be folded in half and takes up little space while not in use. The top is of fine green felt, finished with green leather-headed buttons. When folded, the top is of a beautiful grain of wood in the Early English finish. Size of the top 32 inches. Priced $15.00

ONE IN FORTY-FIVE.

A domestic servant at Heidelberg advertised for a position as cook and maid-of-all-work, announcing that she would be glad to receive offers of employment in keeping with her special talents. Forty-five replies reached her. Forty were cast aside as unworthy of notice, either because of insufficient wages or because the would-be mistress lived in an "undesirable" locality, or higher than the second story.

The five ladies on whom the servant decided to bestow her favor temporarily received written notice that she would do herself the pleasure of calling on the succeeding Sunday between 2 and 4 o'clock. She devoted the afternoon to informing herself as to the manner of living of each family, the regular periods at which rice in water might be expected, the amount of entertaining done, the character and value of gratuities and presents customarily given to servants, how many free evenings a month were allowed, and how long a summer holiday might be expected.

After imparting the desired information the ladies were informed that their offers would be taken into consideration and decision notified by post. Four of them got the following note next morning: "I regret to be compelled to inform you that my choice has not fallen upon you."

PAPER FROM SUGAR CANE.

It has for a long time been known that excellent paper can be made from sugar cane fibre, but the practical difficulty of carrying out the process on a commercial scale has been that the machinery at present in use for crushing the cane so tears and mutilates the fibre that the bagasse is fit for nothing but fuel. According to the United States consul at Santiago, however, the utilization of sugar cane fibre for paper-making is at present attracting considerable attention on account of the increasing prices of wood pulp, and a company has been organized in the United States for constructing a large plant at Preston, or Triple Bay, in order to carry out practical tests with the fibre. The machinery installed will separate the fibre from the pulp, after which the water is eliminated, and the fibre and pulp are left dry, though they still contain the solids and sucrose from which sugar is made. The fibre and pulp are sent to the United States in separate bales, and the sugar is extracted. The process adopted does not injure the fibre, which can be made into high-grade paper at a considerably lower cost than wood pulp, and low-grade paper can be made from the residue from the pulp. The tests have so far proved successful, and it is claimed that, in addition to the process enabling good paper to be made, a larger percentage of sucrose than before can be extracted in the sugar houses.
